

Record Toll On Holiday

155 Perish Accidentally Memorial Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents across the nation claimed 155 lives Thursday, a record for a one-day Memorial Day observance. The toll surpassed the National Safety Council estimate of 130 for the 30-hour period.

The previous record for a Memorial Day observance of 30 hours was 109 in 1956.

The count of traffic fatalities covered the period from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Thursday.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 90 and 130 persons would be killed on the highways and streets during the holiday period. The council's latest report showed that traffic accidents in the first four months this year killed 11,630 persons, an average of nearly 100 a day.

This year's Memorial Day traffic death toll compared to 107 for the 1962 holiday, also a period of 30 hours. In 1951, the only other one-day observance of the holiday since World War II, traffic deaths numbered 81, which is a record low for any one-day observance of any holiday.

Generally fair weather in most of the country lured millions of persons to the highways in the first holiday of the warm season. Memorial Day is not a legal holiday in several southern states. Most workers in states which observed the holiday, available information indicates, were back on the job today, precluding an extended weekend holiday.

The traffic death toll compares with the record high of 253 for a one-day celebration of any holiday, set on Christmas Day in 1946.

The Associated Press made a survey of a recent non-holiday period of 30 hours, from 6 p.m. May 15 to midnight May 16, to provide a basis for comparison with Thursday's toll. The count showed 98 deaths in traffic. There also were 6 boating deaths and 9 drownings.

Drownings during the holiday period totaled 25 and 9 persons lost their lives in boating accidents.

Eight Views Of Thresher On Ocean Bed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Navy sources said today they think there were eight photographs in the new series of the sunken submarine Thresher.

No single photograph gave an over-all picture of the wreckage because light conditions require that the photographs be made at distances of only a comparatively few feet.

During six weeks of search for the Thresher, the Navy has been able to establish, by a variety of techniques, an exactly known point in the ocean around which the close-in, deep-water search for wreckage has been conducted.

The loran system has been of particular value. Loran—meaning long range navigation—is an electronic system in which shore-based transmitters send radio signals from precisely known locations. By measuring the time interval between the sending and receiving of a signal—as little as one millionth of a second—together with triangulation from three transmitting stations, it was possible to provide within 10 yards the reference point for the search. This is the delta position.

A radar reflector on a buoy marks delta, but the 8400-foot length of the line needed for anchoring it means that the buoy swings as much as 200 yards. This has meant that paths on the bottom about 200 yards wide had to be searched, foot by foot, with sonar and cameras before the wreck could be spotted.

The wreckage is about three-tenths of a mile from the delta. Pictures are about two nautical miles from the surface location which the escort ship Skylark reported as her position when the last signals were received from the Thresher.

Housing Bill Pushed By 'Sleep-Ins'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Twenty demonstrators for a fair housing bill slept for the second night in the rotunda of the Capitol, ignoring a legislator's warning that their round-the-clock vigil might hurt the bill's chances.

The group, mostly white and sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality, was bolstered by arrivals from several California cities, who answered a plea for a statewide freedom ride to urge a hearing on the bill.

A spokesman for the group of about 50, not all of whom sit or sleep in at once, said today no one could say how long the demonstration would last.

"We plan to stay here until we get a strong fair housing bill," one woman said.

The administration-backed measure, by Negro Assemblyman Byron Rumford, a Democrat, would ban discrimination in the sale, rental and lease of many dwellings.

It has passed the Assembly, and has been taken under advisement by the Senate Government Efficiency Committee, many of whose members are hostile to it.

Senate Democratic Leader Hugh Burns told a news conference Thursday the committee is working to write a measure the Senate will accept.

Burns told the group their demonstrations would do no good. Rumford warned them they might do more harm than good.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown chatted briefly with the demonstrators Thursday as he showed his grandchildren around the Capitol.

"It is perfectly all right for them to do what they want to do," he said. "We each have our own ways of accomplishing our objectives."

Newland Booked For Assaulting Police Officer

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax Thursday arrested Bernard F. Newland, 604 South Lamine, on a charge of assaulting a police officer May 26, after Newland turned himself in at the Sheriff's office.

The charge is in connection with an incident in a local tavern in which Newland and Officers Robert Vogler and Charlie Knapp were involved. Some blows were struck, and the officers lodged a complaint against Newland.

Newland posted a $75 bond and promised to pay for all damages, then forfeited the bond in police court.

The following day, Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fritz filed the assault charge in Magistrate court. On request of Sheriff Fairfax, this newspaper withheld publication of the filing of the warrant until Newland was arrested.

Bond was set at $250, and Newland met the bond, returnable in Magistrate Court June 7, and was released.

David was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Miles Jr.

Four Negroes Into Union; Dispute Ends

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police and Negroes scuffled again today outside a city school construction site before, with dramatic suddenness, a dispute over alleged job discrimination was ended as four skilled Negro workmen were accepted into union membership and given jobs on the project.

Carrying lunch buckets, a plumber, a steamfitter and two electricians marched through the project's wire gates to prolonged cheers of hundreds of other Negroes, fervent cries of "Amen!" and loud singing of religious hymns.

The 200-man police detail, about one-fourth of it Negro, remained on duty as the crowd began breaking up.

The agreement was worked out by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Philadelphia Building Trades Council and the Philadelphia Board of Education.

There was one dissent. A local steamfitters union spokesman said his union was not a party to the agreement.

Only an hour before the negotiators announced agreement, police and pickets clashed as officers escorted some 80 to 100 workmen through the lines around the construction site. At least eight policemen and an undetermined number of pickets were hurt in the scuffle, apparently none seriously.

The NAACP began the picketing last Monday in support of protests that labor unions refused to accept Negro skilled workers as members.

Record in Foreign Visitors Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam expects a record number of visitors from abroad this year and is asking Americans to be good hosts.

The U.S. Travel Service, whose job it is to lure tourists from overseas, figures that more than 700,000 foreign guests will arrive to sample the new world's wonders. This will be even more than the record of 604,000 of 1962.

The service does not include in its calculations the border-crossers from Canada and Mexico. If 5,000,000 from Canada and 212,000 from Mexico were added in, last year's total of visitors would have been 5,816,000.

Parachute Jumper Killed By a Train

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP)—A parachute jumper hit a moving freight train at the edge of an airport near here and was killed Thursday.

A gust of wind apparently slammed Karl Dean Frandsen, 29, of Raytown, Mo., into the train.

Taxes Hiked $112 Million In 6 Years

Missouri's Last 3 Legislatures Pass Increases

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—When the sales tax goes up from two to three cents on the dollar next October, Missourians will be paying $112 million a year in tax increases imposed by the last three legislatures.

The figures were reported today by the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, a taxpayers' organization which keeps its eye on state taxes.

The survey noted strong demands for costly new state programs beyond those already budgeted. It warned "unless spending pressures are resisted in the closing days of the legislature, the resulting commitments will necessitate further tax increases by the next legislature."

When the sales tax goes into effect, the survey estimated Missourians will be paying $25.93 more per capita in taxes added since 1959. That will bring the total per capita state tax load to $113.50.

Here are the new and increased taxes since 1959, the dates they went into effect and their estimated annual yield:

Use tax, August, 1959, $6.7 million; 50 cent increase in beer and liquor taxes, April, 1961, $3 million; 2-cent per package cigarette tax increase, May, 1961, $11 million; 2-cent gasoline tax increase, October, 1961, $26 million; 1-cent sales tax increase, next Oct. 13, $65 million a year by 1964.

In addition the survey said, the natural growth of the tax bases has added about $100 million a year since 1959, or $23.15 per capita. The 1959 per capita tax figure was $64.42.

Preliminary Hearing For St. Louisans

A preliminary hearing for four St. Louisans charged with stealing more than $50 by shoplifting from Lockett's store in Sedalia April 29, was held in Magistrate Court Friday morning.

After the hearing Judge Frank Armstrong ruled that a crime had been committed and that the defendants might be guilty. He bound the case over to Circuit Court for trial, and set the bonds at $4,000 each.

In the hearing, witnesses identified by stock number articles allegedly taken from the store, and officers told of chasing the car out of town, with articles of clothing being tossed out of the fleeing car.

Columbia police officers told of apprehending the car bearing the license number provided by Sedalia police, and testified that the four people appearing Friday morning were in the car.

Appearing at the hearing were John Rice, Mary Davis, Judith Johnson and Martha Haskins. Rice and Mary Davis failed to make bond and were returned to the Pettis County jail. Judith Johnson met bail and was released. Martha Haskins made bond and was released, then re-arrested by Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and turned over to Greene County officials, who took her to Springfield, where she faces a felony charge.

Death Is 'Very Near'

Sudden Relapse By Pope John

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The condition of Pope John XXIII deteriorated sharply today and the Vatican press office said he was suffering pain. A Vatican source reported difficulty was becoming evident in the Pope's speech.

A press office announcement at 6:45 p.m. said there had been a further deterioration in the Pope's condition from that of the day, when it had been described by Vatican organs as very grave.

As his condition worsened, a Vatican source said, the Pope prayed to himself.

He said to those around his bed that, "on the point of leaving," he wanted to thank them again.

Roman Catholic prelates had administered to him the communion viaticum and extreme unction, the sacraments for persons in danger of dying.

One of the Pope's doctors, Piero Mazzoni of Rome, was quoted as saying, "It can be a matter of hours—or of days."

That pronouncement was relayed to newsmen by Raimondo Manzini, director of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, after an afternoon visit to the sickroom. Manzini was in tears.

"The Pope is grave, very grave," the Vatican radio announced. "The new crisis is most grave."

Aim Strike Efforts To Aid Jobless

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—After riotous demonstrations, Peronist labor unions launched a 24-hour general strike today to press for government action to ease unemployment.

The strike, aimed at paralyzing the troubled country, was called by the 2.5-million-member General Confederation of Labor to climb a week of protest. The CGT is dominated by followers of former Dictator Juan D. Peron, now in exile in Spain.

All unions except the white collar workers have agreed to support the strike, which threatened to slow public transportation to a crawl.

Unions promised to keep skeleton crews manning utilities, hospitals, long distance telephones, airport control towers and other essential installations.

The strike began at midnight after a day of violence in which federal police used tear gas and high pressure water on about 12,000 marching workers. Half a dozen demonstrators were reported slightly injured.

In one clash, 5,000 men and women workers, led by Jose Alonso, CGT secretary-general, battled police for more than an hour until a police commissioner assured them they could demonstrate in peace.

Tear gas scattered 7,000 workers in another demonstration. The unions called the demonstrations and strike to vent grievances against President Jose Maria Guido's shaky regime.

The confederation has accused the government of failing to take action in the economic crisis, which has left one million jobless. It also demands release of prisoners it says are being held without trial.

Missing Padlock More Important Than Prisoner

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP)—A prisoner fled today from the city jail, taking with him the heavy padlock to the "bullpen," where he was confined.

"We're not so much interested in him as we are in the padlock," said Police Chief Frank Paterson.

The prisoner, Robert J. Curry, 27, was arrested for investigation of molesting a minor.

"The charge was minor," the chief said. "We want the padlock."

Positive Identification Of Nuclear Sub's Hull

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—Searchers have photographed wreckage lying on the ocean floor some 8,400 feet below the surface and have identified it as the hull, diving plane and sail area of the nuclear submarine Thresher.

Thresher sank April 10 during a deep sea test dive with 129 men aboard.

The photographs, taken by the research vessel Conrad, were en route today to Boston. They will then be flown to the Navy Court of Inquiry at Portsmouth, N. H. The court is investigating the sea disaster, which occurred some 220 miles east of Boston.

The bathyscaph Trieste is standing by in Boston, the Navy said, and will proceed to the scene if the Court of Inquiry decides more photographs are needed.

Dr. J. Lamar Worzel, assistant director of the Lamont Geological Observatory whose researchers photographed the wreckage Thursday, said the pictures were definitely of the sunken submarine.

Vice Adm. Elton W. Grenfell, commander of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet Submarine Force in Norfolk, Va., said the photographs "appeared to be definitely correlated with the missing submarine."

Experts have said that if the Thresher did sink to a depth of 8,400 feet, she could not possibly have survived. Water pressure at that level would be 3,730 pounds per square inch, compared with the sea-level pressure of 32 pounds.

The Trieste is constructed so that it can descend far deeper than 8,000 feet with men and cameras aboard and withstand the pressure.

The Conrad and other search vessels have obtained their photographs with underwater camera systems lowered by cable nearly a mile and a half below the water's surface.

Since April 10, Navy and Civilian vessels have steadily circled the area trying to locate what became an underwater grave for 16 officers, 96 enlisted men and 17 civilian technicians.

The Thresher was commissioned at Portsmouth Shipyard in 1961. She was considered the most modern of the nuclear attack submarines.

She had left that port April 9 after a complete overhaul.

The next morning disaster struck.

According to testimony before the Court of Inquiry, Thresher radioed:

"Experiencing minor difficulty, have positive up angle. Attempting to blow."

Attempting to blow means to use air pressure to blow water from ballast tanks in preparation for surfacing.

An officer aboard the Thresher's escort ship, Skylark, then heard, by radio, sounds of the submarine "breaking up," he told the Court of Inquiry on April 13.

Marchers Stopped With Gas

257 Arrested In Tallahassee Demonstrations

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—

Authorities used tear gas to stall one march by Negroes and arrested 257 during Thursday, the 10th straight day of antisegregation demonstrations in Florida's capital city.

Most of those arrested are students at Florida A&M (Negro) University, and 220 of them were ordered before State Judge Ben Willis today to answer contempt of court charges.

The other 37 are to appear in City Court Monday to face charges of unlawful assembly.

There was no violence during the marches, aimed at segregated movie theaters. A series of sit-in demonstrations some time ago resulted in the quiet desegregation of lunch counters in the business district.

Plans remained unchanged for another massive protest of segregation at two white theaters tonight.

The mass arrests in Tallahassee provided the major development on the racial front Thursday, but antisegregation activity was popping in many points across the nation.

Integrationists made plans to increase the tempo of demonstrations against segregation in Jackson, Miss.

A Negro spokesman said a massive, Birmingham-type campaign will be launched in Los Angeles with total elimination of discrimination as its goal.

Cities experiencing racial demonstrations Thursday included Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Baton Rouge, La., Chattanooga, Tenn., and Cambridge, Md.

Jones, Sachs Race Winners In Fist Fight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A controversy over Thursday's 500-mile race triggered a motel fist fight Friday between winner Parnelli Jones and Eddie Sachs, who claimed his car spun out because of oil spilled by Jones' car.

About 75 persons witnessed the brief fight at a luncheon at the Holiday Inn near the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Witnesses said the two drivers were chatting quietly near a bar and then began accusing each other over the disputed finish of the race.

Both men called the other a liar, it was reported. Then Jones said:

"You call me a liar again and I'll bust you right in the mouth."

"All right, you're a liar," Sachs said.

Jones smashed Sachs once in the face with his fist, the two grappled and then fell to the floor wrestling. Spectators broke up the fight quickly.

Neither driver appeared to be injured.

Arms for Terrorists Supplied by Cubans

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Official sources reported today that arms being used by terrorists in Colombia were shipped from Cuba.

They said captured carabines in Colombia bore serial numbers of weapons once shipped by the late dictator Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo to his friend, Dictator Fulgencio Batista in Cuba. They thus fell into the hands of Fidel Castro who he ousted Batista in 1959.

Many Prices Being Set Outside US

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—An increasingly affluent society outside the United States is beginning to call the tune for the prices of many things Americans buy. Changing political conceptions at home are upsetting the price patterns of some other basic commodities.

Silver, sugar, wheat, cotton, even coffee are some commodities whose prices right now either are being radically changed as they couldn't have been a few years back, or are actually being set by influences outside the United States.

Living standards of many other lands have risen sharply in the last few years. They have been using a lot more sugar, a lot more silver—and draining from the United States a lot of gold.

For years the U.S. government pretty much set the price of sugar at home. Usually it was about two cents a pound above the world price. The import quota policy protected domestic sugar growers and rewarded friendly foreign supplies.

The United States can't set the price today. The rest of the world is using much more sugar than it did. Along with smaller crops because of bad weather in Europe and an economic flop in Cuba, rising demand has outrun supply. The price has risen everywhere. Now it's soaring here.

Prices of food and drinks containing sugar are rising, too. The U.S. government for many years set the price of silver by statute. What the U.S. Treasury paid for silver, and what it sold it for, became practically the same thing as the world price.

But the rest of the world, along with the United States, is using more silver now. Industrial usage has soared, thanks in large part to silver's new role in electronics and in defense hardware. Here, too, as in the case of sugar, world production lagged as demand mounted. So the world price of silver rose.

In November 1961 the U.S. Treasury stopped trying to hold the price line. Its free reserves were almost exhausted, so it stopped selling any more. The price has gone from the once statutory 91.62 cents an ounce to $1.28 an ounce.

Congress now is freeing the treasury stock held as backing for silver certificates (now mostly $1 bills). The treasury expects to use this freed silver for coinage in coming years. Demand for coins is rising everywhere in the age of turnstiles, parking meters and vending machines.

Congress hopes this action will put a ceiling of $1.29 an ounce on domestic prices. But the upward price pressure on household and industrial items containing silver will continue for a time.

The domestic prices of wheat and cotton have been largely set by government subsidies and controls, since the United States produces more than it consumes. What will happen to the price of wheat, row that the farmers have rejected the government's subsidy and control plan, is a political football at the moment—and therefore an uncertainty. But fear of other nations that any surplus will be dumped abroad to maintain wheat prices at home has led to quick assurances by Washington that it won't.

Cotton surpluses are sold abroad for less than the U.S. textile mills have to pay. The domestic industry is demanding, and getting, protection from foreign price competition.

Coffee prices are to be set by international agreement—if the treaty the United States has just ratified works. This sets export and import quotas for major producing and consuming nations. However this works out in dollars and cents is what the U.S. coffee drinker will pay.

Volcano of Human Affairs

Historians and social scientists probably would agree that most adaptations to important social and economic change have been reasonably managed by conservatives—in America and much of the Western world.

The idea that conservatism somehow operates as a bar to progress just does not fit the facts of history.

Through a great part of America's growth, for example, conservative political figures have been in control. Does anyone dare to suggest that this country stood still in that long, long span?

We all know that we did not.

Many years ago some social scientists devoted a hard weekend of thinking to the problem of how change is managed. The consensus was that generally it occurs through a process of "gradualism."

Not only American history, but British, was cited in illustration. The celebrated British capacity for "muddling through" was seen as a curious talent for effective management of gradual change.

What this amounts to is the ability to judge when the buildup of particular problems has reached the stage where intelligent action is called for. If that action comes, social tensions are eased, and the society moves ahead without undue strain.

Grave trouble comes, say the historians and social scientists, when men in power try to put a lid on change. Then the result may be not peaceful advance but violent explosion.

The French Revolution was such an instance in history. French monarchs had sought for a century or more to arrest the processes of change. Finally the lid blew off.

The sad fact about the violent outbursts is that they almost inevitably lead to excesses which are avoided by the process of sane gradualism. Thereafter valuable energies can be consumed in correcting the excesses.

Those who try to block all change—and who thereby set the scene for social explosions—are not responsible conservatives at all. They are radicals of a sort, as extreme as the radicals at the leftward end.

The radical "conservatives" no doubt persuade themselves that they are busy "preserving the values of the past." But a course which tries to preserve these at the cost of all change leads only to their ultimate destruction by explosion.

Some who resist change believe sincerely they are not simply keeping the status quo for themselves but handing down a "sound heritage" of unchanging values to their descendants and successors. What they are really handing down is the certainty of an explosion.

The instinct of intelligent conservatives is to keep the processes of change under sensible control, to blend the best of the past with elements of the new, to make sure that escape valves for society's tensions are always at work. A people thus guided moves ahead rationally, if slowly.

But total resistance is like a cap on a volcanic cone. Beneath the cap, great counterforce builds. When the inevitable violent upthrust comes, it may engulf everything around the cone—good and bad.

We in America—and our friends in the free West—must thank our stars that we have most often been led by men who could see the peril of total resistance, and chose instead to keep us moving slowly but surely ahead.

Many Forces Shape the Revolution

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The revolution taking place in the South now—where segregation is melting—is only part of a revolution around the world these past 10 years.

Many forces—few of them noble or unselfish—have shaped the revolution: Nationalism, fear, money or the lack of it, science, rivalry, education, affluence, poverty, stupidity and even the desire for real estate.

It was only nine years ago that the Supreme Court, very late in American history, laid down the principle that segregation is unconstitutional. The South could have embraced the principle instantly. It chose not to.

It has desegregated slowly under pressure of the courts, troops, public opinion (the North is far from pure on this subject), increasing Negro insistence, and businessmen's realization segregation is bad for business.

It was just 10 years ago that Stalin's death began a quiet revolution in the Communist world. He left it with such a small his successors had to turn on the fan—in this case, denouncing him—to make communism plausible at all.

The Russian people were becoming too educated—and therefore skeptical—to submit indefinitely to the terrorism of Stalin's kind of communism. The de-Stalinization shocked not only the Russians but Communists everywhere.

Destroying the Stalin myth carried with it destruction of some of Moscow's central control. Communist parties in the satellites and elsewhere in turn had to assert some independence to be plausible to their own people.

This opened the door for the various nationalisms to assert themselves, particularly when Moscow acknowledged there's more than one road to communism.

Moscow lost more control when it was financially unable to meet the needs of its satellites. This inability in part was due to its enormous use of men and resources to compete with the United States in space and nuclear weapons.

Although they kept arming, the Russians now seemed less eager for war because they had reached an affluence they were reluctant to risk in nuclear destruction.

The United States and Russia, out of fear of being outdone, made fantastic strides in science and the exploration of space although it is almost certain neither would be half so advanced if they hadn't dreaded each other so much.

The Red Chinese, no where near as affluent as the Russians and therefore less conservative about risks, have split with Moscow for not being belligerent or aggressive enough. They call it an ideological difference.

Ideology is probably a minor factor. A more practical one is the desire for more food and real estate which are available in South-east Asia and which the Red Chinese no doubt will try to take when they feel strong enough.

The Chinese calling themselves better Marxists than the Russians looks more like an attempt at self-justification, for what they have in mind, than any real concern nese no doubt will try to take when they feel strong enough.

The Chinese calling themselves better Marxists than the Russians looks more like an attempt at self-justification, for what they have in mind, than any real concern about world revolution.

For centuries the West Europeans suffered from the cancer of nationalism and are in a position now, if they could overcome the obsession about it, to achieve a unity unimagined before the war.

But French President Charles de Gaulle's persistent nationalism has forestalled it and what looked like a European unity may wind up as fragments in the ditch of time.

In Africa, where only three nations were free at the end of the big war, there are 28 free now. They met recently to discuss unity as a necessity for their salvation in a world of nations far stronger than themselves.

The only unity they achieved was in pious pronouncements which concealed their disunity since they are going through the painful period of nationalism which has afflicted everyone else, including the United States.

Except for Cuba the only real revolution in Latin America is in the growing discontent of the masses—a discontent which seems certain to explode in blood baths—at the social and economic injustices inflicted upon them by the very rich who refuse to see the writing on the wall.

From Wedding to Crib

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—I used this idea 14 years ago, and think it may help other brides. The church where I was married did not provide a white cover for the church aisle, so mother and I had to buy a whole bolt of bleached muslin. This was not the extravagance we first thought it was. After the wedding we washed it and mom took half and I took half. My first curtains were made from this muslin, as were the dust ruffles on my bed and many other small things. About a year later, the remainder made good baby crib sheets.

GIRLS—I am sure many of you will welcome this simple suggestion. I have always wondered why my grandchildren's sneakers had holes in the toes before they were worn out elsewhere.

DEAR POLLY—When shopping the other day I mentioned to a lady standing next to me that it was almost impossible to find wooden knitting needles in the stores. She said she had a pair, 20 years old, that her husband made from wooden dowel sticks.

The Doctor Says

Bath Oil Is Boon for Sufferers With Dry Skin

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Since I wrote about the treatment of very dry itching skin, I have learned of a water-dispersible bath oil (Sardo) that can be added to the bath water.

Dr. L. A. Dick of the New York University Postgraduate Medical School used it on a series of 100 children with dry skin. They used the oil in their bath daily, and used little or no soap.

There was marked improvement within seven to 14 days but, if the treatment was discontinued, the dryness and itching returned.

Q—What causes the eyes to get bloodshot? What causes painless hemorrhage in the white of the eye?

A—Bloodshot eyes may be due to excessive fatigue, over-indulgence in alcohol, diseases of the conjunctiva, and diseases of the cornea. If rest and soothing eye drops don't clear them up, see your doctor.

Hemorrhage under the conjunctiva is fairly common.

When it is not the result of a blow in the region of the eye, it may be caused by sneezing or anything else that would put a sudden strain on the pressure in the capillaries of the eye. It often appears to occur spontaneously.

This condition does not affect the vision, and clears up in 10 to 14 days without treatment.

Q—I have taken an antihistamine drug for six years for a severe allergy. My doctor shows no interest in finding the underlying cause. Is there any drug other than an antihistamine that I could take that is not a depressant?

A—Finding the cause of an allergy is usually a very time-consuming job, and requires special training and equipment.

If you did not go to an allergist, your chances of finding the real cause of your trouble would be poor.

All antihistamines are depressants but, when taken in moderate doses, they usually control the allergy without producing noticeable depression.

There are many kinds of allergy and many remedies for each kind, in addition to the antihistamines.

Your best bet would be to place yourself in the hands of a good allergist. Your county medical society should be able to give you the names of two or three.

Q—My mother has been ill for two years. Her doctor says she has collagen disease. How does this differ from Hodgkin's disease?

A—The group of diseases referred to as collagen diseases includes lupus erythematosus, periarthritis nodosa, rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatic fever, erythema nodosum, and purpura.

All of these conditions are characterized by disorders of the collagen, which is the gelatinlike protein found in skin, muscle tendons, bones, cartilage, and connective tissue. The small blood vessels are also involved.

Hodgkin's disease is a type of cancer that affects the lymph nodes. About the only thing these conditions have in common is that they both cause fever.

Q—What is the cause and treatment of night sweats?

A—The commonest cause of night sweats is pulmonary tuberculosis, but they may be associated with any disease that causes a generally rundown and weakened condition.

The hot flushes and sweating of the menopause also occur in the daytime, but in many women are worse at night.

The treatment would have to be aimed at removing the cause.

Case of Misplaced Worry

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: Our sixth grade girl is worrying over final exams. We don't understand this. She has always passed them. But she gets nervous and upset even over monthly tests. Before final exams, she sleeps badly and can't eat without throwing up. Do you have any ideas of how to help her through her exam periods?

Answer: Yes, I have an idea.

Democrat Pick-ups

THE LITTLE BOY'S father likes to go fishing and often goes to Turkey Creek.

Playing house with a little girl in the neighborhood one day, his mother heard him say to the little girl, whom he was playing like was his wife: "I'm going fishing."

"Where are you going to go fishing?" the little girl wanted to know.

"Oh," he said, trying to imitate his dad, "I think I'll go to Chicken Creek."—H.L.

THE KID was told to pop some popcorn and so he put the corn in the popper. Pretty soon there was popcorn going every which way over the kitchen.

"Why didn't you put the lid on?" asked his mother.

"Well, you told me to put the corn in the popper," he said, "but you didn't tell me to put the lid on."—H.L.

THE WOMAN had called her son long distance—and the distance was really long. She talked to him for a few minutes and then her grandchild wanted to talk, so when she got through she asked to talk to her son again.

"All right," said the grandson, "I'll get him."

She waited and waited and waited and finally he came to the telephone.

"Where in the world were you?" she wanted to know.

"Well," explained the son, who is a teacher in a college, "I was half way across the campus on my way to a class—was there something you wanted?"

"No," said the mother, who had visions of what her telephone bill was going to be after all that waiting, "I just wanted to tell you goodbye." By that time, if she had had anything she wanted to tell him she would have forgotten it, and she didn't care about prolonging the conversation any further—when she said she wanted to tell him goodbye—now she really meant it.—H.L.

THE GRANDMOTHER had been keeping her small grandson and he had been a perfect little angel. Then his parents

Can you completely detach yourself from all interest in what your daughter's teachers will think about her exam papers?

If you can, you can help her to avoid worry over what they will think of her papers and enable her to concentrate on review and study.

I don't know if you can do this. Many of us secretly entertain grand notions of our powers. Actors imagine that they can control critics' opinions and because they can't, suffer from stage fright.

Businessmen imagine they can control competitors' bids for clients' contracts and because they can't, develop ulcers and heart attacks.

Parents imagine children can determine what some teacher will think about their test papers and, conveying this demand for magical power, cause them to lose sleep and throw up their breakfasts in protest against the impossible task they have been assigned.

It is healthy for us all to experience some degree of tension before any new test of our powers. Our friendly nervous systems rally to the challenge by enhancing our alertness and sharpening our wits.

But when we assume impossible powers, they start kicking up. They won't let us sleep and refuse to let us eat until we stop and listen to what they are trying to tell us.

In the case of your little girl, her nervous system is telling her that she is exaggerating the challenge, blowing it up out of reality. It is saying to you, "I will support my own responsibility for her own performance in final exams, but I'll take none for her teachers' opinions of it. I'll keep her awake at night, reject food and generally harass her until she comes down to earth and understands the extent of what she can ask of me."

Your little girl is afraid of disappointing you by her inability to control her teachers' reactions to her test papers.

came home and he was just the opposite—he was just terrible.

"I didn't know what happened to you," said his grandmother, "you were so good up until now."

"Oh," he confided, nodding toward his mother and dad, "I'm just mean when these kids are around."—H.L.

IT WAS A MEETING where a committee of two men had been asked to select a general chairman for something, or a representative, apparently a rather important job.

When one of them was asked if they had selected someone, he said no, and then he went on to explain why. "You see we considered three men, one he suggested I didn't agree on, and one I suggested, he didn't agree on, and the one we both agreed on wouldn't agree to take it."—H.L.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Pope John's Creed: World Is Universal

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — For several weeks last spring as he knew he was suffering from an incurable tumor, Pope John closeted himself in his private quarters in the Vatican, working on one of the great encyclicals of all time.

Some of his predecessors have also given the world great messages, as for instance those of Pope Leo XIII and Pope Pius XI, who wrote the encyclicals championing the rights of the workingman.

But Pope John's message dealt with the greatest and most elusive goal sought by mankind since the angels over Bethlehem proclaimed the goal of peace on earth to men of good will. He pointed out that the world had become so narrowed by technical science that men must "work together and live as one family."

Nationalism, Pope John admonished, has become old-fashioned and obsolete.

"Today, the universal common good poses problems of worldwide dimensions, which cannot be adequately tackled or solved except by the efforts of public authorities in a position to operate in an effective manner on a worldwide basis."

"What are kingdoms without justice but bands of robbers?" wrote Pope John, quoting Saint Augustine. And those bands of robbers, he made it clear, are now armed with nuclear weapons capable of subjecting the world to mass cremation.

The world will be able to take guidance and inspiration from this rich and crowded message long after Pope John is gone.

Is JFK Too Late?

However, the tragedy is that the first Catholic president in the history of the United States did not take guidance and inspiration from the Pope's wisdom.

This is not to imply that John F. Kennedy was insincere when he told Boston College last month that "as a Catholic I am proud of it (the Pope's encyclical on peace). As an American I have learned from it."

The President does unquestionably cherish a profound desire for peace. But at times he has been timid about it. He has put politics and concern over the criticism of such Republican gadflies as Sen. Ken Keating and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York ahead of his concern over "peace on earth."

In addition, the President is surrounded by sometimes timid men, who feared the Pope had gone too far in talking to Alexei Adzhubei, son-in-law of Premier Khrushchev; and who feared the Pope's doctrine of co-existence would end the cold war and cut the ground out from under the chief reason for U.S. military appropriations.

Finally, the great psychological moment when Kennedy could have taken advantage of the ferment inside the Kremlin was around December 1962, not May 1963. This month, the President is reported joining with Prime Minister MacMillan in proposing to Khrushchev new and conciliatory ways of reaching a nuclear test ban. Their reported plan carries a hint of compromise and a willingness to explore the question of whether three inspections per year on Soviet soil may not be enough.

Red Politics Ebbs and Flows

But it was last winter that the more conciliatory position should have been taken. For politics does not stand still inside the Communist world. The forces for war and peace ebb and flow as much or more than in the capitalist world.

It was from November through January that Khrushchev sent the olive branches to Kennedy indicating that with the withdrawal of Russian missiles from Cuba the two nations should combine to banish international irritants.

It was at that time that some of Kennedy's advisers, who do not belong to the timid school, including ex-Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson with long experience in Moscow; ex-Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, a former ambassador to Moscow; and Ambassador Allai Stevenson, urged him to give Khrushchev something that would strengthen his hand inside the Kremlin, something to show his right-wing Kremlin critics that his policy of cooperation with the United States was paying off.

But the President did not take this advice. Nor did he follow the dictum of his own spiritual leader in the Vatican—until it was too late.

Today all reports from Moscow show that the Khrushchev line of moderation has shifted, that the Red army and the right wing are calling the tunes, and that the tune will feature rough discord for and with the United States.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "Plumber's Wife" and decided the time had come for me to speak out.

Every line of work has its disadvantages and there's no getting around it. My husband is an undertaker. For years I've had to listen to jokes about morticians until I was ready to scream. You can't imagine the crude remarks I've had to smile through—such as, "How is your husband's business? Dead, I'll bet." Or, "it must be wonderful to have customers that never talk back." Recently a woman said to me, "Your husband can't lose. He gets 'em all—sooner or later."

When I was first married I used to become indignant and I let people know it. Now I accept it all as part of his work—even the "pay as you go" jokes. So, please, Ann, tell the women who complain about these things that nothing can save them like a sense of humor. — HEARD 'EM ALL

Dear Heard 'Em: Thank you—in behalf of all wives everywhere. Now—can you stand one more? Does your husband endorse the lay-away plan?

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the high school student who complained about a certain boy in the class who cheated during exams made a strong impression on me. You told the complainer not to be an informer—that eventually the cheater would do himself in.

I know how right you are, Ann, because I am a boy who cheated and now I am paying the price—emotionally and economically. I've spent my life trying to cover up my ignorance of things I should have learned in school. I've bluffed and faked—revealing my lack of fundamentals time and time again, fooling no one, I'm sure. I was a notorious goof-off in math courses and this has cost me dearly. I've looked bad in business deals because I couldn't figure percentages, interest rates, and so on. I must rely on others because I am unable to come up with answers to elementary questions. I've regretted a million times that I didn't play it straight in school. Perhaps the basic problem is that too many kids don't know what they are in school for.—CHEATED MYSELF

Dear Cheated Yourself: Thanks for a letter from someone who has been there.

It's too bad so much emphasis is placed on grades that some kids will do anything to get them. Undeniably, however, grades ARE an incentive and reward for achievement often serves as a spur. But a grade is no substitute for knowledge—and kids who fake out the teacher wind up with a sack of shells.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are both 40. We have been married legally for 22 years. Five years ago he left me for another woman but said he did not want a divorce.

He has had dinner with me and the children five nights a week, and often sleeps here and has breakfast with us. I pack him lunch to take to work. He usually spends weekends with the other woman.

Yesterday when our oldest son heard him call his woman friend on the phone and make a date he told me I was a fool to put up with his nonsense and that I should throw him out or insist that he stay home all the time.

I wish I had the courage to do it but I haven't. I love him and am afraid that if I put it to him this way I will lose him altogether. Please help me. — CONFUSED JELLYFISH

Dear Confused: I can't help jellyfish — particularly jellyfish who don't want to be helped. You have allowed your husband to enjoy all the comforts of home and date on the side like a single man. And he will continue to have his cake and eat it so long as it's available.

The truly sad part of this arrangement is that you are losing the respect of your children who seem to have a far better sense of values than you. C 1963, Publishers Newspapers Syndicate.

Nobody really notices Volkswagens any more. They're so well known, they sort of blend in with the scenery.

It doesn't matter what the scenery is, either. You can buy a VW in any one of 633 cities in the country. (Or in any one of 136 countries in the world.)

And that takes in lots of scenery. Deserts. Mountains. Hot places. Cold places.

Volkswagens thrive. Hot and cold just aren't important. The VW engine is air-cooled. It doesn't use any water, so it can't freeze up or boil over.

And having the engine in the back makes all the difference when it comes to mud and sand and snow.

The weight is over the power wheels and so the traction is terrific.

VWs also get along so well wherever they are because the VW people make sure that their service is as good in Toledo as it is in Tasmania. The only reason you can't buy a VW at the North Pole is that Volkswagen won't sell you one. (No service around the corner.)

Greg Weld Takes an Early Lead to Win Feature Race

By LARRY EMBRY

Greg Weld, a young Kansas City driver, pushed his fleet No. 22 into first place at the start and moved on to a commanding victory in the 35-lap "A" feature Memorial Day on the half-mile track at the state fairgrounds.

The 133-lap racing program, witnessed by over 8,000 persons, was sponsored by the Sedalia Jaycees. Racing under sunny skies, drivers reported the track was fairly fast, but rough in both turns.

Two serious accidents, one in the hobo race and the other in the first "B" heat, marred the afternoon and sent two drivers to Bothwell Hospital with injuries.

Leslie Hansen, 1413 South Grand, was the most seriously hurt with a head concussion. Hansen's car was involved in a tangle with two other cars in the south curve early in the first "B" heat. Hansen's racer spun out and went over the bank of the curve, overturning on its side.

An ambulance and pit crewmen rushed to Hansen's assistance and had to cut his safety straps and free his pinned feet to pull him from the wrecked car. He was taken to the hospital in a Ewing ambulance and was unconscious about six hours before he revived. The hospital reported his condition Friday morning as fair.

Oliver Cox, 1510 South Osage, spun out on the south curve in the hobo race and another car collided with his racer. Cox was also taken to the hospital in a Ewing ambulance. He received an injury to the right shoulder and back, but the hospital described his condition as fairly good.

The "A" feature, previously scheduled for last on the afternoon's program, was moved up by race officials to facilitate a number of the drivers who were going to Knoxville, Ia. for another race Thursday night.

Weld, who recently placed fifth in the IMCA-sanctioned "Little 500" at Winchester, Ind., was pushed by several drivers early in the "A" feature, but soon held a good lead. Russell Hibbard, wheeling his Indianapolis-type No. 27, came in second. Ken Taylor, Slater, CMRA champion, finished fourth and Junior Hower, Kansas City, current state champ, was fifth.

Weld was a double winner in copping the three-lap trophy dash, holding off Bud McCune of Brookfield. The time was a fast 1:20.14.

Bud Hunnicutt, Kansas City, steered his No. 15 to first place in the "B" feature as Kansas City drivers grabbed the first five positions in the race. Al Baldus, No. 36, was second and Virgil Chapman, No. 27, wound up third.

The top winner in the "A" race took home $350 and the "B" winner got $200. A total of over $3,000 in prize money was paid out to drivers.

Bud McCune of Brookfield, the Knoxville, Ia., champion, turned the half-mile oval in 25.72 seconds to take the fast time trial trophy, but didn't come through in the feature events.

Winner of the hobo race was Wally Calvert, 1002 South Merriam, in No. 98.

The race was the third such program on Memorial Day sponsored by the Sedalia Jaycees.

Free Night For Public On Saturday

Two Sedalia baseball teams will play at Liberty Park Saturday at 8 p.m., and the Merchants have selected this as the annual free night for the public.

This will be a regulation game, except for a free substitution rule for the Ban Johnson Team. The rule was adopted because the recent rains have prevented the team from getting in the desired practice sessions, and the team management wants to use as many players as possible.

Terry Fletcher and James Schnackenberg will see mound duty for the Ban Johnson team, with Bill Ferguson catching Tom Adams and Skip Schultz will see mound duty for the Merchants, with Bob Guilbeault catching.

This game is intended to be a showcase for the future games to be played this summer.

The Merchants nipped White-man AFB 10-9 in a game Thursday afternoon at the base. This evened the series with each team chalking up one win each. Dick Horner was the leading hitter, with four. He also tossed two scoreless innings in relief.

Hopes For New Pattern

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson of Philadelphia hopes that a familiar pattern in boxing—a puncher against a boxer—doesn't prevail in his title match with Willie Pastrano Saturday night.

The champion, 34, frankly wants the challenger from North Miami Beach to come to him and not run away in their 15 round nationally televised (ABC) bout.

"If he fights," Johnson said Friday "somebody is going to get knocked down."

"I won't say it will be him or me but—"

Johnson's manager, Pat Oliveri cut in: "Pastrano will be the one to go down. When Harold explodes a bomb on his jaw, the lights will go out."

The Cubs put together the biggest single inning spurge of the season with their 10 runs in the fourth of the opener against the Mets. Sixteen Cubs batted against loser Al Jackson, Larry Bearnarth and Don Rowe.

Larry Jackson coasted in with a six-hit shutout and now is 7-5. Hook received key offensive support in the second game from Duke Snider, who knocked in both Met runs with his 397th career homer and a single.

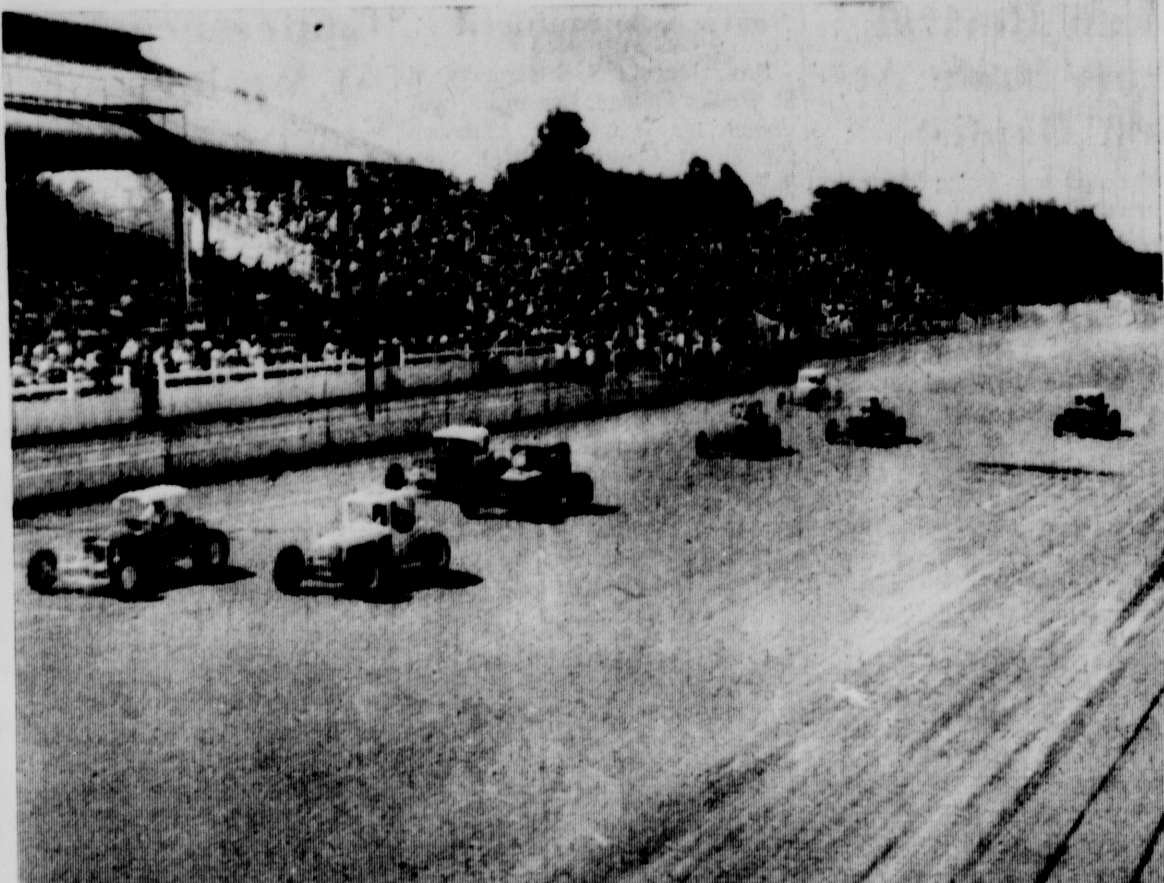

Hook, 2-5, set down 21 Cubs in order at one stretch. The loss went to Glen Hobbie, 1-4.

Jerry Lynch banged his first homer since returning to the Pirates from the Reds and Don Cardwell registered a neat eighth-inning homer in Pittsburgh's rout of Philadelphia.

The Phils gained a split in the second game squeaker, taking the lead by scoring four times in the fifth and adding the deciding marker in the sixth. Wes Covington's two-run pinch homer highlighted the Phils' big inning.

Ray Sadecki was the winner with relief help from Ed Bauta, and Dick Farrell the loser.

Tosses Way To Plus Side Of Ledger

By JIM HACKLEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer

After years of struggling to reach the break-even point, Billy O'Dell has pitched his way to the plus side of the ledger.

And as an added asset, the left-hander currently owns the most profitable record in big time baseball—a perfect 8-0.

O'Dell, 30, won his eighth in a row Thursday night as the San Francisco Giants topped the Cincinnati Reds 5-4 with the help of homers by rookie Cap Peterson and Felipe Alou, the relief work of Bob Bolin, and his own infield single.

The one-time Baltimore bonus baby, who was traded to the Giants in 1959, went into the year with a 63-66 mark to show for six seasons plus in the majors. Now he's rolling and so are the Giants, with a 2½-game lead in the National League race.

Also in the NL, Warren Spahn recorded his 334th pitching victory as the Milwaukee Braves beat the runner-up Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Houston Colts 9-5; the Chicago Cubs whacked the New York Mets 12-0 before the Mets took a 2-1 decision behind Jay Hook's two-hit pitching; and Pittsburgh split with Philadelphia, the Pirates winning the opener 7-1 and the Phillies squeezing by 6-5 in the second game.

In American League, the Minnesota Twins made it 10 straight, nipping Washington 3-2; Kansas City whipped first-place Baltimore 7-2; the New York Yankees edged Boston 6-5 in 10 innings; Detroit's Hank Aguirre blanked Los Angeles 3-0; and the Chicago White Sox swept Cleveland 8-4 and 4-2.

The Giants nicked loser Joe Nuxhall for single runs in the first and third innings, and Peterson made it 3-0 in the fifth with his first major league homer. A two-run sixth capped by O'Dell's scratch hit seemed frosting, but turned out vital for San Francisco.

O'Dell handcuffed the Reds on three hits before they cashed in two runs in the sixth. The southpaw was lifted during another Cincinnati rally in the seventh, and Bolin yielded a two-run single to Darvyl Spencer, but held off the Reds the rest of the way.

Hank Aaron paced the Milwaukee attack as the Braves beat Don Drysdale, whacking his 15th homer, a double and single. Spahn took a 6-1 lead into the eighth inning but then was tagged for Jim Gilliam's homer, Tommy Davis' third single, Bill Skowron's double and a triple by John Roseboro.

Claud Raymond held off the Dodgers the rest of the way, preserving Spahn's seventh victory against three losses.

The Cardinals collected eight unearned runs against the Colts, who committed five errors in losing their fifth in a row. St. Louis' big inning was the six-run third, when the Colts made three errors and Stan Musial belted a three-run homer—the 471st of his career.

Ray Sadecki was the winner with relief help from Ed Bauta, and Dick Farrell the loser.

gest single inning spurge of the season with their 10 runs in the fourth of the opener against the Mets. Sixteen Cubs batted against loser Al Jackson, Larry Bearnarth and Don Rowe.

Civil Defense Debate Goes On In Services Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—A great debate posing a question of life or death for millions of Americans is proceeding on Capitol Hill before an audience averaging 35 persons, some of them dozing.

The scene is the hearing room of the House Armed Services Committee, a room so imposing that big artillery shells are used for doorstops.

The question: Should the federal government press forward with a plan to provide public fallout shelters for all Americans, equipped with everything from survival biscuits to chemical toilets?

The talk drones on about multi-megaton nuclear monsters able to dig a hole 350 feet deep in solid granite; about millions being incinerated, or suffocated and about other millions emerging to try to rebuild civilization in a poisoned wasteland.

For the moment, the world is in a lull between crises, and the public interest in the hearing appears to be tepid, to say the least.

But two tragic facts quickly take shape:

1. From the day in 1939 when Albert Einstein alerted Franklin D. Roosevelt to the war potential of atomic energy, it took the United States only six years to produce the atomic bomb and drop the first one on Hiroshima.

2. But now, 18 years after Hiroshima, the United States has no civil defense worthy of the name. Much of it is on paper, and much of the rest is confused.

This is acknowledged on all hands—despite the fact that since 1950 the federal government has spent a billion dollars or more on civil defense. (The exact figure is in dispute.)

The Kennedy administration is asking $300 million for the next fiscal year. The controversial item in this total is $175 million to help fix up shelter space in non-profit institutions, like schools, hospitals and jails. The hope is that this will make profit institutions shelter-conscious, too, and will get more citizens interested in building home shelters.

First witness before a subcommittee headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., was Philip W. Kelleher, subcommittee counsel. He's a long-time government lawyer, father of six, and has no home shelter, though "I've been thinking of it."

He read what everybody called a masterly paper summing up all the objections raised by anti-shelter authorities.

They included such questions as:

Is it American to become obsessed with burrowing in the ground?

Would not shelters induce a false sense of security, diverting the people's energies from the quest for peace?

Even if there were shelters for everyone, might not the Soviet Union circumvent this defense by exploding big nuclear bombs in the air rather than on the ground?

Kelleher quoted Dr. Alexander Langsdorf Jr., atomic physicist, on what would happen then:

"From an airburst you would get a massive firestorm which might set all Chicago on fire. Concrete fallout shelters would turn into ovens, cooking the people inside. If they don't burn, they would probably suffocate, because all the oxygen would be consumed."

Kelleher said blandly that his paper was "slanted," raising all possible objections for the administration to knock down if it could.

Next up was Stuart L. Pittman, assistant secretary of defense for civil defense. He is a non-rhetorical lawyer. He also has no home shelter. However, he has stashed away supplies in a corner of his basement, and Mrs. Pittman has spotted a shelter in a nearby apartment house to which she will take the children in case of emergency.

Pittman and other Defense Department men have been working on a plan whereby possible shelter for 70 million people has been located in existing buildings, caves, mines and tunnels. He estimates that spaces for 10 million people have been stocked with emergency supplies and that 50 million will be stocked by fall.

Pittman received a jolt just before the hearing. His carefully knit plans began to unravel in the northwest corner of the country. Portland, Ore., resigned from participation in civil defense. Some city fathers held that the whole thing was useless in the nuclear age—that there was no substitute for peace. The Oregon Legislature also developed an aversion to spending more state funds on the joint federal-state-city program.

Pittman, who hopes to bring Portland back into the fold, is pressing on with his program. The stakes, he told Congress, "are too high to ignore any practical measures."

On the question about burrowing in the ground, he asked: Since when have American soldiers thought it wrong to seek shelter in foxholes in order to live and fight again? Anyway, he said, 70 per cent of the shelters would not be underground, but in the inner cores of tall buildings.

The administration plan is the best buy, he said; it is no panacea but low-cost insurance that could save the lives of millions outside the big blast areas.

Rep. Chet Hollifield, D-Calif., an atomic specialist, went to bat for the administration plan too. He pleaded for shelters "to stop the gamma rays from piercing human flesh and destroying it."

Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-Mich., kept asking embarrassing questions. Is Congress setting a proper example? He wanted to know.

"If the siren went off now," he asked Hollifield, "do you know of any emergency supplies under the capitol dome? Do you know of a shelter where there is a tin of K-rations, or even a band aid?"

Sorrowfully, Hollifield said that he did not; that "we stand unprotected today."

Pittman explained that he is ready to move the supplies in as soon as Congress leaders and the capitol architect complete plans to receive them.

It turned out that the management of a nearby hotel, where politicians queue up for drinks and lunch, has got the jump on Congress. The hotel has a fine supply of federal emergency supplies in a storeroom near its subterranean garage.

And a brunette in the manager's office is a connoisseur of survival biscuits.

"They taste fine," she said. "Just like animal crackers. The only drawback is, they are fattening."

Minow Is Riding Off To New Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the day Newton Minow deserts the New Frontier and rides off into the sunset, westward bound for Chicago and a little pot of gold.

At 37 and with five years still to go on his seven-year hitch as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, he's chucking government service to join Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc.

There seemed to be some mystery about the move until one of Minow's associates grew tired of being asked what for.

"For $100,000 a year," he said. Without Minow as FCC chairman, Washington may never be the same, especially if the prayers of some broadcasters are heard.

His successor, E. William Henry, 34, it is true, takes over with the reputation of being just about as tough a regulator as Minow.

A lanky lawyer from Memphis, Tenn., Henry moves to the top after just eight months as an FCC member.

He shares many of Minow's views about television.

He looks on much of the staple television fare — situation comedies, Westerns and whodunits — as unworthy of the amount of prime time devoted to it.

He believes that programs on public affairs, art, news and education can be entertaining and, therefore, palatable to both viewer and sponsor.

And he's bent on reminding broadcasters that their license renewal will depend on how well they serve the public, not merely on whether they can turn a dollar in a ruggedly competitive business.

But even Henry admits that, however tough he turns out to be, his tenure is unlikely to produce the shock effect of Minow's reign. The most important accomplishments of the FCC during that reign were, perhaps, those most quietly effected.

Through compromise, cajolery and cooperation, the agency helped push through legislation to set up a communications satellite corporation; to provide government aid for the creation of state-wide educational television networks, and to give television elbow room for future growth by requiring that newly manufactured television sets be capable of receiving 12 channels instead of the usual 12.

Yet, there are some broadcasters who will remember Minow less for this than for the fact that during his chairmanship a record number of radio and television stations suffered fines or license revocations for violating FCC rules.

And even more are apt to remember him for his cutting description of television as "a vast wasteland."

That phrase, uttered before the National Association of Broadcasters in his maiden speech as FCC chairman, stamped him among broadcasters as a man to keep tabs on.

In that speech Minow also dropped some other clues as to where he stood, statements such as these:

"I believe in the people's good sense and good taste, and I am

In Church Affairs

Vatican Secretary of State Is Man Closest to Pontiff

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A short, bespectacled man with a stern face sits each day at the bedside of Pope John XXIII, conversing quietly with the gravely ill pontiff.

He is the Vatican secretary of state, the Pope's closest collaborator in conducting the affairs of the Roman Catholic Church.

Amleto Cardinal Cicognani is the only important Vatican official spending time with the Pope.

Cardinal Cicognani's constant meetings with Pope John these days are primarily business sessions. The pontiff must be kept up to date on urgent Vatican matters and make decisions.

Cardinal Cicognani is the Pope's contact with the world outside his bedroom.

The Cardinal, at 80, a year younger than the ailing superior who gave him the red hat and entrusted him with the top job below the papacy, has also been bringing Pope John comforting messages of hope from around the globe.

Cardinal Cicognani left the papal apartment several times this week to tell the world what the Pope was thinking about as he lay facing death.

The secretary of state disclosed that Pope John wished for grace for his church, for his Ecumenical Council and for mankind in its aspirations for peace—through the calling of his soul if God should wish it.

That was the first public word anyone had from the Pope since his stomach ailment struck again so severely last week. And it was important in indicating that Pope John apparently assumes his Vatican council will be carried on. His death would suspend it and leave the decision of reconvening to his successor.

Cardinal Cicognani is from Brighthelm near Faenza—like the Pope a northerner. His parents gave him a name right out of Shakespeare. Amleto is Italian for Hamlet.

He and an older brother, Gaetano, entered a seminary. Amleto was ordained in 1905. A scholarly priest, he rose through the ranks of Vatican administrative jobs and put in 23 years with the Curia.

Much of that time he was assigned to the Vatican Congregation for the Oriental Church. It gave him wide knowledge of religious and secular activity in the East.

As an archbishop he was made apostolic delegate to the United States March 17, 1933. He served in Washington for 25 years, becoming respected and admired in the U.S.

Pope John called Archbishop Cicognani to Rome in late 1958 and made him a Cardinal at a consistory on Dec. 15. The Pope had to bypass an old rule that made the presence of a relative in the College of Cardinals an impediment to membership.

Gaetano Cicognani, a Cardinal since 1953, embraced his brother when he got the red hat and exclaimed: "At last."

The elder Cardinal Cicognani died in February 1962.

Pope John chose Amleto Cardin-not convinced that the people's taste is as low as some of you assume."

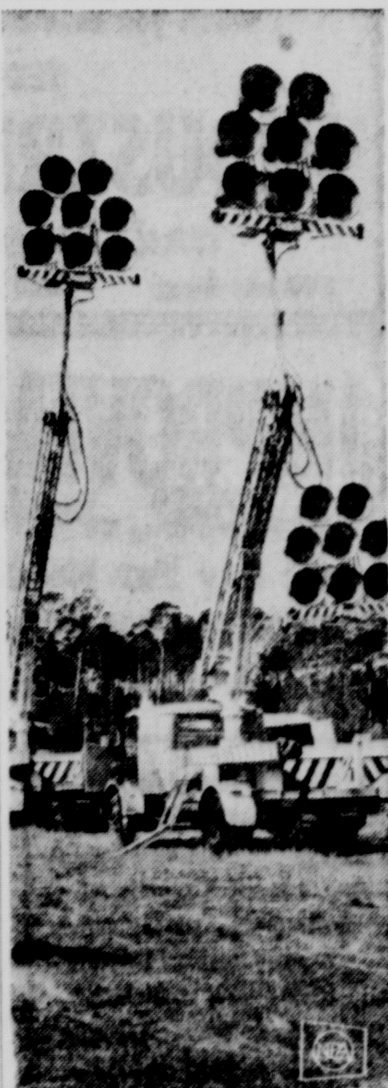

"I want to see broadcasting improved and I want you to do the job."

"I did not come to Washington to idly observe the squandering of the public's airwaves. The squandering of our airwaves is no less important than the lavish waste of any precious resource."

"There is nothing permanent or sacred about a broadcast license."

It wasn't the kind of talk calculated to make friends, and it didn't.

But in the months that followed one thing became clear. He meant every word of it.

Station Will Seek A Reconsideration

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An official of radio station KWK in St. Louis said Thursday the station will ask the Federal Communications Commission to reconsider revocation of the station's license.

The commission revoked the license by a 3-2 decision Wednesday. KWK was given until July 29 to clear up its affairs.

Station President Andrew Sphaeris said in Milwaukee the ruling came "as a complete surprise and unwarranted by the facts as we know them."

The commission said KWK defrauded the public by misconduct in two treasure hunt contests.

KWK has 30 days in which to asked the commission to reconsider. The station then can appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Kennedy Puts Wreath at Tomb Of Unknowns

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy led the nation Thursday in honoring the dead of its wars.

As ranks of servicemen stood at present arms, bayonets gleaming in the sun, the President placed a red, white and blue wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery.

After the brief Memorial Day service, Kennedy made a quiet unscheduled visit to the grave of James Forrestal, the country's first secretary of defense.

A Book From a Thesis

'Family Living In Bible' Earns a Masters Degree

By MARIE PRICE

NEW YORK (AP)—Edith Deen went back to college after 35 years of being out of school. The result: A master's thesis and a book, "Family Living in the Bible."

The book, published this spring, was an outgrowth of a thesis on family living which earned her a master's degree at Texas Woman's University in 1960. It was her third volume dealing with religious subjects.

Mrs. Deen, wife of Edgar Deen, former mayor of Fort Worth, was a woman's editor and daily columnist on a Fort Worth newspaper for more than 25 years.

Although Mrs. Deen was reluctant to start studying after she finished her second book, her husband's encouragement convinced her she should return to the college.

When Mrs. Deen tackled her thesis, she found the Bible covers the subject of the family more thoroughly than any book on record.

"Practically every one of the 66 books in the Bible has some reference to family living," she says. Her book is based on the King James version.

Her book outlines Biblical teachings on family life, and Mrs. Deen believes the Bible contains clues to the answers for all sociological problems.

The source of family wholeness and happiness, Mrs. Deen feels, can best be found by drawing closer to God.

"I hope my book will bring to public notice the high and noble ideals of family life which the Bible proclaims," Mrs. Deen says.

Mrs. Deen's previous books are "All of the Women of the Bible," and "Great Women of the Christian Faith."

Double Talk Class Helpful In Scoring Social Success

NEW YORK (AP)—The class in double talk will please come to order.

Double talk is a sure way to social success in a world where oral honesty is not only suspect—it's downright unwelcome.

As a reminder of double talk in action here are a few everyday examples—plus their literal translations:

"I certainly agree with you that Marcel Proust was one of the most introspective minds of the 20th century." He puts me to sleep, too.

"Oh, it was just an accident—I don't believe you spilled more than a drop or two on me. Forget it, please." I wonder if everyone in your family was born with 10 thumbs.

"I'm sorry, I didn't realize you were trying to park your car in this space, too." Whew—you almost beat me to it! Better luck next time, pal.

"Don't be so impatient, dear. I told you I'd be dressed in five more minutes." And in an hour and five more minutes, I may be. "Congratulations, Jack. It's a well-earned promotion—and it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy." If I pull out my handkerchief and start bawling, this jerk will know how envious I really am.

"The last time I played golf, I made it around in—let me think now—86." As I recall." Or could that have been my last bowling score?

"Why, what a darling baby, Jim. He's the exact spitting image of you." Now take him away, and let him drool on someone else.

"What a screaming coincidence, Effie. We're wearing the same dress." You copy-cat, you, I could claw your eyes out, right here and now.

"I'm always glad to talk things over with you fellows from the Internal Revenue Service. You're so understanding." I wonder how much he's found out.

"I wouldn't marry him if he were the last man on earth." Anyway, he's never asked me to.

"I swear, John, it wasn't me who put the scratch on that fender." No, it wasn't me—it was the garage door.

"I could sit and hear you talk on this subject for hours—it's so interesting." Babble on, blabbermouth, who's listening?

"I take it as a real compliment, Arnold, that a man with brains like you would want to play chess with a dumb bunny like me." But if you ever try to get me to play a game after we're married, I'll bust the set over your little round skull.

Feeds Spilled Coins Back Into Telephone

MADISON, N.J. (AP)—When 10-year-old Allison Grimes stepped into a telephone booth to call her mother last week, she found it littered with nickels, dimes and quarters, all spilling over from a coin return slot.

Allison scooped up $6.30 worth of change. Then, after dialing the operator, she fed it back to the phone company.

"I never thought of keeping it," Allison said. "After all, a lot of people worked for that money." Allison got a luncheon and a tour of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company exchange at Morristown Wednesday as a reward for her honesty.

Elephant's Trumpet Stampedes Horses

ALAMO, Calif. (AP)—With nerve-shattering irregularity, an elephant's trumpet would cut through the peace and quiet of this village in Oakland's outer ring of suburbia.

This not only jolted Mrs. Allen Rhodes, it stampeded her 10 head of Arabian breeding horses, she complained to the sheriff Tuesday. And there's no good reason for it, she added.

Deputies discussed the elephant trumpeting with the owner of the wild animal menagerie on property adjoining that of Mrs. Rhodes.

The elephant was moved into a barn. The horses have calmed down. Quiet has been restored to Alamo.

'Update' Is About To Fade Out

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the pleasant experimental programs of the past two seasons has been "Update," on NBC, developed for and aimed at the teen-age audience. But it looks as if next Sunday's "Update" will be the last of the series.

Robert Abernathy, 36 who is commentator on the program, is not down-hearted by the end of the program, feeling that it accomplished something. For one thing, he found that although the half-hour Sunday afternoon news program was aimed at teen-agers, at least half of its devoted audience had left the teens behind.

"I've had to do 'Update' to my own satisfaction," Abernathy said, "and I've felt for some time that most news on radio and television was too condensed because of the time factor. The words go by so fast that many times it's hard to know just what has been said."

Abernathy has been tackling complicated news subjects on an easy-does-it basis. He treats one subject at a time, he speaks slowly, explains clearly. "It's sort of a combination of teaching and he breaks the program into three parts.

"News is the first part, and the middle part is more feature material, and at the end I've tried for softer material, that could give me a chance to deal with books and science," he said. "And if the news lead had to be fairly depressing, I've tried to end the program on a hopeful and optimistic note."

Abernathy expects to go back to his old job of covering the Washington scene.

Next Sunday's windup show is called "Bob Abernathy's Washington" and will be a feature about the history and landmarks of the capital city where he was brought up.

After 33 years, CBS Radio will terminate its weekly broadcasts of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at the end of the current season. And the reason for the termination, expressed by Arthur Hull Hayes president of the radio network, is most interesting.

When the broadcasts started, there were but a dozen symphony orchestras in the nation. Today there are 1,252 and annual attendance of symphony concerts outnumbers total attendance for major and minor league baseball games.

The old preachment that children should be seen and not heard has been nicely reversed through the years by TV personality Paul Frees. Often heard but seldom seen, Frees is heard on uncounted scores of commercials, has often "looped in" for movie stars and is the voice of Disney's Ludwig von Drake.

The nearest Frees has come to being seen regularly on TV was during his stint on "The Millionaire". The hands of the unseen benefactor who doled out $256 millions belonged to voice man Frees.

We're not passing out million dollar checks at TED'S RADIO & TV SERVICE, but we are making money-saving deals on new SYLVANIA TV sets. Assault On Race Barriers

Labor Union Membership Drive Effort

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Picket line violence in the city of brotherly love, prompted by Negroes; demands for the right to join labor unions, may have spawned a mass assault on segregation barriers all across the North.

Demonstrations which started peacefully two weeks ago with a sit-in in the mayor's office erupted into violence for the second time Wednesday.

Ten persons were hurt as pickets, laborers and police clashed at the North Philadelphia site of a $6-million school project.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, prime mover in the local demonstrations, has charged labor unions with failing to hire non-white skilled workers. The unions have denied it.

After Wednesday's outbreak during which massed police faced as many as 500 pickets, national officers of the NAACP wired support of local leaders and promised an all-out effort to break down labor segregation barriers in other cities.

Herbert Hill, national NAACP labor secretary, said in New York demonstrations will begin very soon in such cities as New York, Washington, Chicago, Cleveland, Boston and St. Louis.

Negro ministers in Philadelphia joined demonstrations for the first time Wednesday. Two of 15 at the school site were hurt but not seriously.

During the morning, the ministers spoke to the crowd over a loudspeaker and said that Sunday they will call from their pulpits for a demonstration Monday that will be the largest this city has ever seen or that ever has been staged north of the Mason Dixon Line.

They estimated 20,000 to 200,000 will turn out.

Eichmann's Widow Sees Vindication

EDITOR'S NOTE — What kind of woman could love the convicted murderer of 6 million people? Here is the story, a year after his execution, of Adolf Eichmann's widow, written by a rabbi's daughter who was the only woman reporter who covered the full 122 sessions of his trial.

By TRUDE FELDMAN

Written for The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP)—It has been a year since Adolf Eichmann was executed in Israel, a year in which his widow, Vera, has been living in quiet seclusion in Germany.

It has been a year of sadness and indecision, of privacy in a small village near Heilbronn, in two rooms with a single stove, with her 78-year-old mother and her 7-year-old son.

But the sky is brightening a bit, and she looks forward to joining her three married sons and their families in Argentina, where her husband was captured three years ago by Israeli agents. She hopes to leave Germany today.

I met Vera Eichmann in Munich on several occasions during the month preceding her husband's hanging. She saw him last on April 30, 1962. He died on May 31. I was with her that night. We have been in frequent touch since I returned to the United States.

Mrs. Eichmann is a portly, dark-haired woman of 55. She is well-groomed and has excellent taste in clothes, most of which she makes herself.

It is almost inconceivable that this woman, who speaks so endearingly of Eichmann, lived so many years as the happy wife of a man charged with the mass murder of 6 million humans.

Clarifies Its Name

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP)—Honduras asked the British government Wednesday to stop calling British Honduras by that name. Honduras said the correct name is "Belize."

The request was made by Foreign Minister Carlos Perdomo Paredes in a note delivered to the British ambassador.

SALUTE TO DEAD COMRADES—A six gun squad composed of American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars members fired a salute to Sedalia's dead veterans and other deceased loved ones in a ceremony Thursday morning at 10 a.m. at Memorial Park Cemetery. Commanded by Jack Alpert, past commander of VFW Post 2591, (extreme right), the gun squad was composed of left to right Raymond F. Wilder, Connie DeLapp, Walter Loveland, Earl Bell, Ray Heinaman and Henry Heinman, Jr. The ceremony, attended by about 200 persons, opened with remarks by Mayor L. L. Studer and the Rev. Walter P. Arnold. John Henry Brooks was in charge of the observance and recognized members of all local veterans organizations. The playing of taps by a bugler followed the gun salute with the closing benediction by the Rev. Father F. C. Laudick, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Between US, Mexico

Border Dispute Settlement Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top American officials said today good progress is being made toward settlement of 50-year-old border dispute with Mexico.

Despite the progress, however, these sources said there was no prospect of negotiating a mutually satisfactory solution to the squabble before President Kennedy travels to the vicinity of the disputed territory next Wednesday.

Neither, they said, was there any chance of a meeting at that time between Kennedy and President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico, even though the American chief executive will be just a river bank away from Mexican soil.

The source of the border trouble is 450-acre area which the United States claimed as part of El Paso, Tex., when the Rio Grande, the traditional border between the neighboring countries, abruptly changed course early in this century.

A White House announcement Tuesday that Kennedy would spend the night of June 5 in El Paso led to speculation in some circles that a settlement of the territorial question was imminent.

However, it was learned on very high authority, that despite progress no settlement was possible by then.

The disputed territory, little known outside Mexico and parts of southwestern United States, is called El Chamizal. Until the Rio Grande changed course, El Chamizal indisputably was part of Mexico.

Battlefields Still Taking Their Toll

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a decade since the last of the nation's nine major wars ended, but Americans still die on battlefields, to be remembered on this Memorial Day.

Their names still come in, by ones and twos, to be added to the more than 602,000 who fell during the past 188 years at such places as Lexington and Taeyon, at Gettysburg and Normandy, at the Battle of Lake Erie and on the Coral Sea.

The United States isn't an official belligerent in Viet Nam's war. But in the last 2½ years 36 Americans have died by "hostile action." They were with South Viet Nam forces in engagements against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Only Wednesday night, the Pentagon announced that a U.S. Army captain and a private were killed while on combat patrol in Viet Nam. The officer was identified as Capt. James Brodt, 30, Cocoa, Fla. Pending identification of the next of kin, the private was not identified.

Ervin Drives Swift Mare To Win First

WESTBURY, N. Y. (AP) — Frank Ervin, veteran driver from Sedalia, pushed Spite Rodney to the front shortly after the start and the daughter of Rodney led all the way through the fog Wednesday night for a 2¼-length victory in the $85,663 Realization trot for 4-year-olds at Roosevelt Raceway.

Spite Rodney finished the 1 1/16 mile race well ahead of A. C.'s Viking, last year's Hambletonian winner.

Third to finish in the richest harness event of the season to date was Pro Hanover. He was five lengths behind A. C.'s Viking and took third money by a head over Worth Seen in the field of eight classy trotters.

Ervin is a brother to Colle Ervin, 2103 South Limit, who is a former secretary of the Missouri State Fair.

Howerton's Resignation Handed In

U. L. Howerton, who has been serving as city traffic clerk and police magistrate, Wednesday gave notice of formal resignation effective June 1 in a letter to Mayor L. L. Studer and Chief of Police Ralph Hamlin.

Howerton, 1534 South Grand, was not re-appointed to the traffic clerk position when the City Council made its annual appointments May 20. J. H. Marr, 1401 South Ohio, will replace Howerton on June 1 in the clerk's post, but Howerton will continue as police magistrate.

"I find it necessary to resign from traffic clerk, assigned to me at the City Hall and, because of this, would like to issue this public statement," Howerton said in his letter to Studer and Hamlin.

"My work is presently divided between the Parking Department and traffic accident records, to which I was appointed for one year, and Police Magistrate, to which I was elected for a term of two years in the city election in April, 1962.

"It now develops that under the Police Merit System ordinance, that I am not eligible for appointment to perform any duties in the Police Department while serving in an elective political office and, conversely, the Parking Department bond ordinance provides that the time of its employees must be confined to the parking

New Speed Record

Jones Wins 500 Miler Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones won the 47th Indianapolis 500-mile auto race today with Scotsman Jimmy Clark forcing him to a record-smashing pace.

Jones was expected to win, with the radical new Lotus-Fords as strong contenders, and that's how it was.

Clark's green Lotus-Ford had to make only one pit stop to Jones' three, and he was about half a lap behind at the finish.

The wreck-plagued race was finished under the yellow light but Jones had it won and Clark couldn't have caught him in the last lap in which cars had to hold their positions, with Jones in front.

Fuel on the track from the wreck of Unser, whose brother Jerry was killed on this same track in 1958, forced the other cars to hold their positions, with Jones in front.

Hurtubise had set a first lap record of 143.312 m.p.h., remarkable since the field doesn't hit the starting line at full speed. The old mark was 142.971 last year by Jones.

The race resumed at full speed under the green flag after the track was dusted and Jones began pulling away from the field.

The caution light was on 9 minutes 41 seconds.

Unser said he crashed to keep from hitting Dick Rathmann's car when it slowed suddenly, evidently due to mechanical trouble.

At 50 miles, Jones was running (Please turn to page 4, Col. 3)

Bid for Freedom

BERLIN (AP)—Two East German soldiers escaped to West Berlin Wednesday.

Both came in full uniforms and brought their weapons along when they crawled through the barbed wire fences south of Berlin, West Berlin police said.

One of them is a 23-year-old corporal, the other a 20-year-old private first class. Both were on patrol together at the border between East Germany and West Berlin.

Bracero Plan Battle Is Taking Shape

WASHINGTON (AP)—A senior member of the House Agriculture Committee will try to keep alive the law that lets farmers import Mexican field hands for jobs for which American workers are unavailable.

The House, in a surprise move, voted Wednesday to end the 12-year-old bracero program.

The action came on a 174-158 roll call vote.

Rep. E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., chairman of an agriculture subcommittee which recommended passage of the legislation, said he doesn't think the nation is ready to deny farmers "the right to have some labor."

Gathings said U.S. farmers need bracero labor to plant and harvest their fruits and vegetables, sugar beets and cotton.

Kennedy Places Wreath at Tomb Of the Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP)—A solemn President Kennedy placed a Memorial Day wreath on the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery today, then stepped back to attention as a muffled drum rolled and a bugler sounded taps.

After this ceremony, marking the national observance of the day, the President made a scheduled visit to the grave of James V. Forrestal, first secretary of defense. One of Forrestal's sons, Michael, is a member of the White House staff.

His son, John Jr., accompanied the President on the Arlington visit.

Thousands of Memorial Day visitors lined the winding drives into Arlington and packed around the Tomb of the Unknowns to watch the brief ceremony.

At the Forrestal grave, which is some distance from the tomb of the unknowns, the President stood in silence reading the inscription on the gravestone. Then he turned and headed back for his car.

Nation Marks 100th Tribute to War Dead

Ceremonies Throughout The Country

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With gratitude to her war dead, and in loving memory of all her deceased loved ones, the nation marked another Memorial Day—with its roots of observance not dating back exactly 100 years.

President Kennedy placed the presidential wreath on the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington Va. National Cemetery. And old soldiers, young soldiers and just plain citizens conducted ceremonies in most every city, town and hamlet.

In addition to wreath-laying rites are the parades, speeches and gunfire salutes. For millions of Americans it also is a day of rest, and for other millions it means the start of a long weekend holiday.

Most historians agree that the holiday dates to April 1863, when several women at Columbus, Miss., scattered spring flowers on graves of Confederate and Union soldiers.

At Rindge, N.H., ground-breaking ceremonies are scheduled for a memorial bell tower to honor all women war dead.

In Albany, N. Y., Harry M. Startup, 82, a Spanish-American War veteran, leads the city's parade. It is Startup's third time to serve as grand marshal.

At Fort Banks in Winthrop, Mass., Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, the President's mother, takes part in ceremonies naming three streets in honor of fallen servicemen, including her son, Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., who died in World War II.

The President, after his wreath-laying at Arlington, flies by helicopter to Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland, for lunch, and then back to the White House for some office work and a little relaxation on the holiday.

At Arlington, President Kennedy was joined by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who in a prepared speech reminded all Americans that "we are leaders in a tense world who must meet serious issues with a calm, sober sense of responsibility."

Pointing out the tensions created by the Communists throughout the globe, Taylor paid tribute to the Americans lost in South Viet Nam, calling them "national heroes in every sense of the word."

"The conflict in Viet Nam typifies dramatically the new challenge we are facing in many parts of the underdeveloped world," Taylor said.

Fairgrounds Become Jail At Jackson

As Police Await Demonstrations In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two fairgrounds exhibition buildings were hastily converted into special jails as police awaited threatened racial demonstrations.

A 6-foot-tall wire fence was erected around both buildings, which would not be used unless the Jackson jail overflows.

Negro leaders, meanwhile, planned to step up demonstrations despite a policy of instant arrest, aimed at keeping a tight lid on the campaign against rigid segregation.

Eight boycott pickets were arrested in front of a downtown department store. They sat down, went limp and were carried to the paddy wagon by Negro trustees who accompanied police.

The wagon also picked up three Negroes who entered a cafe.

Thirty-eight demonstrators have been arrested since picketing and sit-in activities started Tuesday to back demands for an easing in the segregation pattern.

Two white youths were hurt Wednesday night when Negroes tossed bricks through the windshield of their car in a Negro section. But there was no violence during daytime demonstrations.

The previous day a mixed group which tried to desegregate a lunch counter was attacked.

Throng of white persons gathered on Capitol street—the main thoroughfare — when the first six pickets appeared Wednesday. A few white youths stepped in front of the pickets and attempted to halt them. Otherwise there were no incidents.

Demonstrators arrested for picketing were charged with displaying a placard without a permit—a new city law. When their City Court trials began Wednesday afternoon, Jack Young, a Jackson Negro attorney, contended the new law was unconstitutional.

Western Spy Scandal

Soviet Demotion In Archives Case

MOSCOW (AP) — The scandal of a western spy in the Soviet secret archives broke out anew today with the demotion of a former artillery marshal and new attacks on the U.S. and British embassies.

Sergey Sergeevich Varentsov, 62, Soviet marshal of artillery until 1961, was reduced in rank for having opposed separation of Oleg Penkovsky from the army and for pushing him into a job in the state committee on coordination of scientific research.

From that committee, it was testified in a trial early this month, Penkovsky poured 5,000 photographs of secret documents into British and U.S. intelligence. For that crime Penkovsky was shot May 16.

A British businessman, Greville Wynne, 44, was sentenced to eight years confinement for helping deliver the espionage material.

The announcement of punishment for those involved one way or another with Penkovsky was made in the government newspaper Izvestia in an interview with the prosecutor at the trial.

The prosecutor, Lt. Gen. Artem Gorny, said the marshal was reduced in rank and Major Gen. A. Pozovny, Col. V. Buzinov and others were demoted and punished. The nature of the punishment and demotion was not given.

Western embassies, particularly U.S. and British, were accused again of espionage, an activity which Soviet officials almost never admit.

Gorny said British and U.S. intelligence services "use for their espionage activities members of various delegations, scientists, businessmen, cultural figures, students and tourists who come to our country."

Gorny mentioned 12 British and U.S. Embassy staff members who had been named in connection with the case. All have left the Soviet Union.

Tuna Boats Are Enroute To Salinas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two American tuna boats seized by Ecuadorian naval vessels on charges of violating territorial waters, were reported proceeding today to Salinas, an Ecuadorian summer resort port.

A State Department spokesman said the boats—the White Star and the Ranger, both from San Diego, Calif.—were expected to reach the port about 100 miles northwest of Guayaquil later today.

There has been no trouble, the spokesman said. He added that sources here do not know what the next step will be.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk asked Ecuador Wednesday to release the two boats. He made his demand in a telephone call to Ecuadorian Foreign Minister Benjamin Peralta and said he would send high ranking officials to negotiate a settlement.

The two boats were seized by the Ecuadorian navy on charges of fishing within the three mile limit. The Tuna Association of California denied this and said the boats, with the rest of a 23 ship fishing fleet, were operating 13 miles off the coast.

What Are the Budget Needs?

There are few Sedalians who do not have some direct or indirect relationship with at least one or more of the 12 agencies which receive support from the United Fund. This organization provides a unified plan of giving which replaces the old practice of separate drives for each charity and character-building organization in Sedalia and Pettis County.

Administration of the United Fund is no small task. Each year it requires much advance planning before the fall fund-raising campaign.

Even at this early date committees of citizens who donate their time are at work on administrative details. People seldom hear about their contributive efforts.

Right now attention is being given to a preliminary but most important detail — obtaining from all the participating agencies in United Fund detailed budget requirements so these may be analyzed for the purpose of establishing a UF goal for the fall campaign.

The ultimate goal when established should be a realistic one based on realistic budgets. It is in this field that the officers and boards of the participating agencies can be of great help to the United Fund budget committee. The latter needs facts and figures and information about the various agencies and their operations in order to make an equitable determination of allotments the United Fund can fairly make.

The UF budget committee is in the unhappy position of hearing all sorts of complaints about how the agencies are operated, how funds are disbursed, how services are given. By their very nature these reports often are exaggerated. If there is no justification for them, the UF budget committee should have the privilege of making pertinent inquiries of the officers or board members of those agencies submitting individual budgets for approval.

This may touch some sensitive areas.

However, co-operation is necessary and the United Fund budget committee can rightfully expect that information will be given willingly without any feeling on the part of those questioned that the UF committee is setting up a court of inquisition merely to throw weight around or subject anyone to embarrassment.

Frankness and friendliness is called for in a business-like procedure that has community welfare at heart.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The late Judge Leroy Gordon Cooper of Shawnee, Okla., passed on many bits of wisdom and philosophy to his son, the astronaut. One of them was: "The world will stand aside for the man who knows where he's going."

Rep. Tom Steed (D-Okla.), a friend of the family when young "Gordo" was growing up in Shawnee, thinks that the astronaut may have patterned his life on such paternal advice.

"I can recall him as a boy in Shawnee," says Steed. "He was a friend of my son Dick, and used to come to our home. He was a serious-minded, athletic lad who seemed to have a mission in life and always tried to excel in whatever he did—to do the best job he could."

"Even then he was intensely interested in aviation. As I recall, he soloed in an airplane at the age of 16, while other boys were learning to drive automobiles. His parents always helped him along. They were of good pioneer stock, the salt of the earth."

"His mother, Hattie, that beautiful lady you saw on television, used to go trout-fishing with her husband before he died a few years ago. She's still one of the best fly-casters in that part of Oklahoma."

In Washington, Congressman Steed asked Hattie Cooper if she was worried by the report that Gordo was having difficulties in the late stages of his orbit and would have to fire manually the retro-rockets that brought him back to earth.

"Tom, you know me well enough to know that I wasn't really worried," she replied. "I thought he would make it all right. I had more confidence in him than I did that machine he was in."

However, like most other astronaut relatives, she was not happy about having to face television cameras and answer reporters' questions. When Gordo asked his mother if she wanted to attend his own post-flight press conference at Cape Canaveral, she said:

"Son, you can't avoid the press conference at Cape Canaveral, but I can—and I am."

Cancer Patients' Protest

Whether you were a doctor, a congressman, or just a hardboiled newspaperman, you couldn't help but have your heartstrings torn by the testimony of a little group of cancer patients who pleaded with Congress and the administration to keep the door open for them to receive krebiozen after June 7.

Krebiozen is the drug which Dr. Andrew Ivy, former dean of the University of Illinois Medical School, claims will help relieve cancer but which the American Medical Association frowns on. Caught in the middle of this dispute, the Food and Drug Administration is faced with the new law banning, after June 7, drugs on which there has not been a complete clinical investigation.

Worried by this dispute, the users of krebiozen came to Washington to protest.

"I am not interested in their argument. My concern is my husband's life," said Mrs. Laine Friedman of Flushing, N.Y.

The pretty dark-eyed mother of four explained that "the surgeons opened George up, took one look at his abdominal cancer and sewed him back together again. He was given one month to live."

"I found krebiozen. He is alive and working today. Without it he would be dead."

"Someone is going to answer to me if they cut off this drug to the thousands of krebiozen users."

Mrs. Friedman said her own physician wouldn't give her a statement that he is using krebiozen because he couldn't risk possible American Medical Association reprisals. He might lose his hospital privileges.

One Doctor Disagrees

Dr. F. Allen Rutherford, Lebanon, Pa., said this was no idle fear. The Good Samaritan Hospital dropped him from the staff, and he could no longer use the institution until a newspaper campaign created such a furor that he was reinstated.

Dr. Rutherford said that in 40 years practice he had only two cancer patients survive more than five years with orthodox therapy, until he learned of krebiozen's investigational use by Dr. Ivy.

Dr. Rutherford described krebiozen as "miraculous," said he has "seen it work on 35 different types of malignant growths" in every area of the human body; that it "takes up where surgery and radiation let go."

He said he "had treated 198 patients, of whom 97 per cent were terminal," and that one in eight had responded favorably. Fifty per cent of his patients had received pain relief.

The government says krebiozen's originator, Dr. Steven Durovic, and Dr. Ivy have not submitted sufficient information to allow the National Institutes of Health to design a clinical study.

However, NIH has found it possible to use the taxpayers' money for such studies as:

The social role of the aging wild Ungulate; behavioral and physiological concomitants of dreaming; studies of a disease in a giant snail; emergent leadership among the New Guinea Tolai; the oral health of Icelandic peoples; investigation of information contained in echoes; alcohol use in a changing Navaho community; blood group genetics of Southampton Island Eskimos; tooth development in sheep.

But, said Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.): "They have consistently and persistently refused" to test krebiozen.

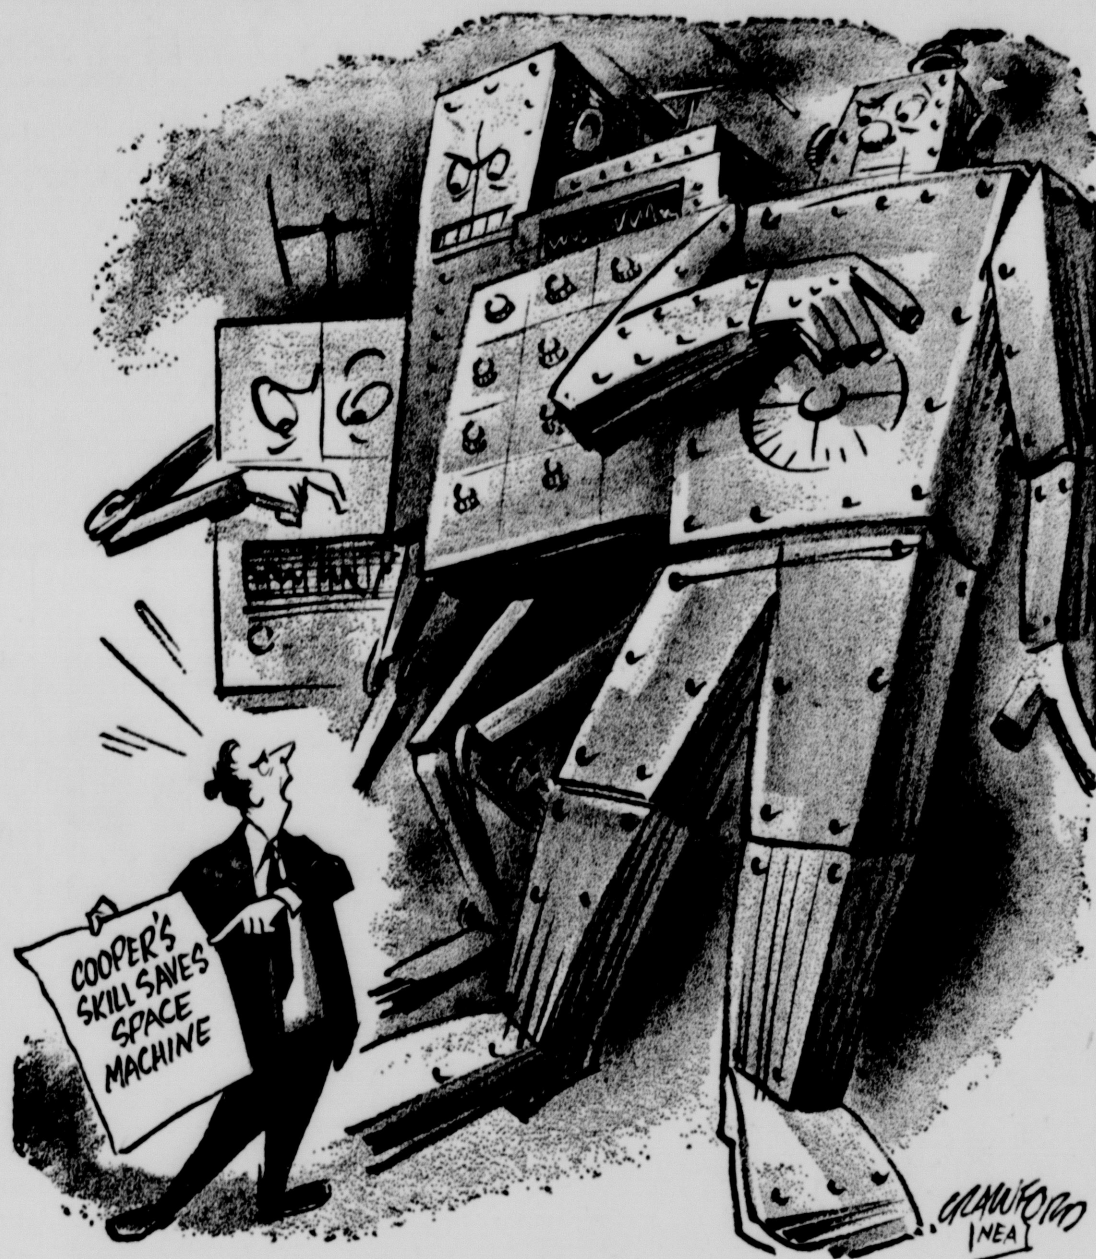

"I believe they have refused, in large part because at the beginning of this work Dr. Ivy got into a dispute with the AMA and the AMA has refused to grant it any credence and on the contrary has attacked it bitterly."

"I believe NIH . . . has, fallen under the control largely of the pundits of AMA and is ruled by the prejudices of organized medicine."

"We know that Dr. Semmelweis was virtually driven out of medicine. We know that Lord Lister . . . was nearly driven out of medicine. The great German Dr. Robert Koch likewise was nearly driven out of the practice of medicine. The great Jenner was persecuted, and only rose over many objections to become a leader in the medical profession."

Note—Statistics show that one in every four persons will contract cancer and one in every six persons will die of it.

We the Women

We Mean to Be Heard

By Ruth Millett

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
"Women's noisy voices are one of the biggest causes of divorce," says a Connecticut psychologist who is studying effects of noise in modern society.

The psychologist gently suggests that American women learn to modulate their voices, as do European women.

He didn't explain why the voice of the female American has become so loud and high-pitched and downright noisy. But I have a theory about that.

The American woman, unlike the European woman, spends a lot of time in groups of women. If she's not at a coffee or a tea, she's at a committee meeting or a woman's luncheon. Or she's in a class of women, learning anything from how to prune roses to how to refinish old furniture. Or she's in a room full of women playing bridge at a club or a benefit party.

Now, the noise made by a room full of women all trying to talk at once and all determined to be heard — is downright deafening. So voices grow louder and higher, and the women who can command any kind of attention are those who can talk the loudest.

In any such group there will be a few soft-voiced women. But the poor things never get a word in edgewise. Before the gentle-voiced can finish a sentence, the loud-voiced have drowned them out.

So talking in a shrill or loud voice becomes a habit a woman takes home from her feminine get-togethers. And the husband and children get out-talked by a voice that has, for half the day, been trying to out-talk other women.

And the situation isn't going to change. What red-blooded American woman is going to modulate her voice and become a nonentity in any woman's group, even if it might make her voice more pleasant to her husband and children?

Harper's Ferry

By CYRENE DEAR

HARPERS FERRY, W. VA.—John Brown's body may be a mouldering in the grave but his memory is being resurrected by Mission 66, the Harper's Ferry Historical Park.

Situated in the hills of West Virginia, where the Potomac and the Shenandoah meet in a breakthrough of the Blue Ridge Mountains, this ghost town is a landmark as famous as Appomattox in Virginia and Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

In 1859, John Brown, a Connecticut Yankee migrated to Kansas. He was a religious abolitionist. Considering himself an instrument of Providence, he collected a few followers and started out to free the slaves.

He chose Harper's Ferry for his raid because it was near the Mason-Dixon line and surrounded by mountains suitable for guerrilla warfare. The exact place for his rendezvous was the Kennedy farm in Maryland. He staged his attack on the residents of Harper's Ferry about midnight Oct. 16, 1859.

Two days later Col. Robert E. Lee and Lt. J. E. B. Stuart arrived at Harper's Ferry with 90 marines from Washington. Of Brown's party, 10 were killed, 7 captured and 5 escaped; on the other side 4 civilians and 1 marine were dead.

Amidst great popular excitement, the bearded John Brown was brought to trial in Charles-town, a week after the raid. He was indicted for treason against Virginia, for murder and for conspiring with slaves to rebel.

Brown refused to permit a plea of insanity and was convicted. He felt no guilt. He denied everything, saying, "a design on my part to free slaves and to interfere on God's behalf to help the despised poor was no wrong, but right." With his comrades-in-arms, he was hanged in Charleston on December 2, 1859.

In John Brown's hanging, the North had a martyr. The South had a traitor. The song "John Brown's Body" inspired many marching feet on both sides through the tragic long civil war.

Now, a hundred years later, the picturesque town, Harper's Ferry, will become a National Park. The restoration is already underway. The old inns are being renovated for tourists; the old relics now on display in dusty taverns will be cleaned and placed in proper settings; restaurants will soon open in a town where you couldn't even buy a milkshake and "Over night Guest" signs will appear on the stone worn brick houses. The famous stone steps leading to Jefferson Park will again be climbed by visitors to view the merging rivers and scenic beauty of the majestic hills.

Harper's Ferry will no longer be a ghost town but a landmark as famous as Concord Bridge.

FINDING THE WAY We Need to Live Beliefs

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The discussion concerning myths and legends has aroused every type of emotional and academic discussion. The debate has a way of obscuring the manner in which polite people can translate truth into myth. What happens to truth if it is treated as a museum piece or an ancient relic?

For instance, there can be no doubt that there is a religious truth which insists that all men are the children of God. The entire thrust of the Judeo-Christian faith is against the heresy of racial discrimination.

Yet there are people who will insist upon this religious truth while making it a myth in their daily lives. Such people are willing to subsidize that which they will never imitate. They make their religion an interesting but irrelevant myth.

Or here is an insistence of our faith concerning personal integrity. The ancient commandment taught that a man must not bear false witness against his neighbor. The commission of slander and the participation in gossip was not only frowned upon but received the positive thrust of the New Testament.

You'd have a difficult time getting anyone to argue about this religious tenet, yet our nation confronts grave problems of perjury and the undermining of a sense of integrity. So truth is turned into myth.

Jesus once told the story of an ultimate judgment in order to rivet home a fact. It was a picture of a final decree by a judge who condemned men because they had not served God while thinking of themselves as good men. When these who were judged protested, saying, "When did we see you and not show personal concern?" he said simply, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to the least of these my brethren ye did it not to me?" That is the kind of insight that is required lest we fall into the trap of the myth.

Our greatest problem in this generation is acting upon the truth which we know, moving out on the faith we possess, and sharing the witness of a great faith in the midst of the present situation.

At least some of us are not worried about myths that are made into truth; we are concerned at the facility of so many people in turning truth into myth.

It's a time when we ought to witness in our daily words and deeds that which we have confessed with our lips.

It is a fundamental truth that insists, "Yea, blessed are they that hear the Word of God and do it."

Dialogue from Washington

By VERA CLAY

Maybe it is old-fashioned but there still are people who get a big thrill out of an American hero. This correspondent is one of them.

When Astronaut Cooper came to Washington to get his official pat on the back from President Kennedy I went over in the drizzling rain to the west entrance of the White House, once again, walking through the gate, nodding to the guards and thinking with pleasure what a great country we live in.

The White House, our official home, actually is a plain place. It does not compare to any of the magnificent palaces in other capitals of the world. Its gardens are well-kept but they are not spectacular. Actually, it is "home" to the men and women of the country; larger than life, to be sure; furnished in antiques, neater, on the whole, though Caroline's toys and things are apt to be strewn about in her play area in the garden.

But posh it is not. The White House is the home for an elected president, not some monarch or dictator, even though political opponents of practically every president who moves in claim over and over again that each executive is trying to usurp his constitutional powers and become, if not king, father of a royal family or general to a military dynasty. The Roosevelts were so accused, so was President Eisenhower, and now, of course, so are the Kennedys.

But, a king or military dictator would not be happy in the White House. It suits our country and our presidents to a tee: the house is rambling and not systematically nor sensibly laid out to the best advantage. But neither are our sprawling fifty states nor our awkward branches of government and constitutional processes.

The First Family must be far from comfortable tucked away on the top floor of the White House, looking out of its windows and seeing a constant stream of sightseers tramping through the gates. Privacy for them is hard to come by. Yet, President Kennedy has a deep love of country and has expressed himself many times privately as well as publicly in this respect. He may wish the people who are walking around wouldn't tramp like elephants on the floors but their pride in the house, itself, is as great as President Kennedy's and yours and mine.

When a fellow like Cooper, Glenn or Shepard or any of the astronauts bring credit and glory to our nation, it is fitting that they be brought to the White House to receive the acclaim of the people through the President of the United States.

We are, in effect, inviting our heroes to come to our own house and get a big handshake from us — all of us — who, occasionally, need the emotional lift that a good job, well done, by any one of us, deserves.

A house only reflects the people to whom it belongs. The White House belongs to us: its ghosts, its triumphs and tribulations, its winners and its losers, and its skeletons in the closets, are an integral part of our heritage.

There are periods in our history when it is considered corny to be patriotic. Flag-waving is scorned by the so-called intelligentsia, the chic, and the blasé young people. There are times, too, when patriotism is used mercilessly in the interests of say, the John Birch Society or Communist groups within the community. Then, it is being used falsely. But honest, down-to-earth love of one's country, even in the age of the astronaut, is a welcome emotion.

I'm not ashamed to say that walking through the gates of the White House to welcome home an American hero makes me feel happy and proud for all of us. It makes our house on the block — the block of many nations — look good because of accomplishment.

They will be so interested in getting to the treasure, they will wash up automatically and dutifully, until they have established the habit of cleanliness without realizing it. — M. E. E.

DEAR POLLY — My husband and I are both in our 60s. So whenever we go on vacation, I take a plug-in night light. It helps one of us find medicine and our way around a strange room without disturbing the other one. This would be helpful for people traveling with small children. — A. U.

DEAR POLLY — We have a family rule that no one is to wear a store-bought garment until I have first reinforced the buttons, hooks, snaps and ornaments. It takes only a few moments and saves time and money later on.

If the hem is to be changed in a ready-made dress, I unravel the thread used to put it in and wind this thread on a small white card. This is the correct shade for the dress, so it is used for resewing. Usually there will be some left over after the hem is put in by hand. This extra serves for the reinforcing of buttons, etc. Any that remains is left on the card and marked for identification.

If extra buttons come with a dress, they, too, are fastened to the card with the thread. If I make a garment at home, any leftover buttons and a few yards of the thread also are wound on a card. This saves searching through my button and sewing boxes when a quick repair job is needed. — RCHT

Wedding Bells Soon to Ring As 'Marriage Month' Nears

By MURRY ENGLE

Marriages are made of lace, flowers, candlelight, moon, June and ethereal things. Sometimes later, they are made of dirty socks, cold winters of clashing personalities and the harsh light of things very real.

If a marriage is to last, it is also made with a man and woman's understanding about their mutual responsibilities, rights, characters and the willingness to sacrifice for each other. When that is so, somewhere between the two extremes, two people can meet life together, usually better than they could have separately.

Many decisions have to be made concerning marriage and wedding ceremonies. Judy Kay Gardner and Charles Edward Wadleigh have decided their wedding will be June 1, 1963.

"Since our first date, Nov. 1, 1959, when we were juniors at Smith-Cotton High School, we knew that was the way it had to be," says Judith Kay.

Charles had asked Judy Kay for several dates before then, but each time she already had a full calendar. Finally, she says, she decided that if he couldn't "get coordinated," she'd coordinate him. That was accomplished by her asking him to escort her to a Job's Daughter dance, where she was to be honor princess.

There's been no one else for either of them since. It was not long before Judy Kay and Charles decided they would be married. They set the time for this spring or summer. This last fall, a definite date was chosen.

In the interval between that first date in 1959, the couple has been graduated from Smith-Cotton. Charles was co-captain of the Tiger football team his senior year and Judy Kay was homecoming queen.

Now they are both in college. Dec. 16, 1961, Charles gave Judy her engagement ring. Judy will be graduated Aug. 17 from Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg. She has gone to summer school, and to fulfill part of her graduation requirements, has been practicing teaching in Raytown. Charles is a junior at CMS, majoring in industrial arts, specializing in electronics. Before they entered college they decided to save money by not joining campus sororities and fraternities. No expense is spared on stamps, however. Judy and Charles write letters to each other every day they are apart.

Too often, preparations and activities for a wedding leave the bride and bridegroom too exhausted and nervous to appreciate what should be a most memorable and pleasurable event. Judy and Charles have resolved to avoid this.

Long in advance of preparations, Judy devised a schedule which plans everything connected with the wedding from three months prior to walking down the aisle, until the reception is over. Everything is pretty much on schedule. If planning works out, the day before the wedding, all Judy will have to do, is rest and visit quietly with her family. Of course, observing tradition, she will not see Charles on her wedding day until she goes to meet him at the altar.

The couple's first decision was for a dignified, quiet ceremony and reception, with emphasis on the religious and deep meanings of marriage. Of course, the details are designed to make the wedding a thing of remembrance. At half past seven o'clock Saturday evening, June 1, their vows will be exchanged at East Broadway Christian Church, by candlelight. The Rev. Cleo Gray will read the ceremony. The matter of marriage has been discussed between the couple and Mr. Gray.

Until a girl starts planning a formal wedding, she does not realize all the myriad of things to be done. A few arrangements to be made are:

Talk with the families (the Gardners and Wadleighs heartily approve the match).

Time and place of wedding.

Minister.

Flowers (in this case, 12 palm plants, two baskets of flowers, half a dozen seven-branch candelabra and two swirled bar candelabra).

The wedding cake.

Refreshments for reception.

The wedding gown and at least two fittings.

Attendants, servers and candlelighters and what they will wear.

Gifts for attendants.

Photographer.

Guest list.

Rehearsal dinner and rehearsal.

Shower and party invitations to be answered and compilation of RELIGION, rather than festivity is to receive emphasis in the wedding ceremony which will unite Judy Kay and Charles in four days.

Here, they have a serious chat with the minister, the Rev. Cleo Gray, pastor of East Broadway Christian Church, in his study.

Brides and Grooms Learn Weddings Are Expensive

By WARD CANNEL

In the mating rites of the average American female this is the most important time of year—the booking season.

"Never again," says Alexandra Potts, editor of Modern Bride magazine, "will this young lady spend so much money in so short a period of time."

"Never again after the booking season will she be so financially confused."

But in the meantime, suppliers in this bridal industry capital point out:

There is the wedding dress to be booked at an average price somewhere between $80 and $180.

There is the church and reception hall to be booked, and the flowers, food, music, champagne, and clergyman at the cost of another $900.

And there are the first, basic household items to select, from skillet to mattress, from floor to ceiling — at an additional average $3,000.

The total national take: $6.6 billion estimated for this year, cutting straight across the U.S. economy from silk worm to steel mill.

Add the average 2,500 dollars' worth of gifts ordered in this season for each wedding, and the new car, the downpayment on the house, and the money spent on the honeymoon and the bridal booking season begins to look like budget week in Washington.

So big is this season, in fact, that while brides account for only

3 per cent of the total U.S. household, they also account for over 60 per cent of the purchase of electric skillets and waffle irons and nearly 50 per cent of the purchase of bedroom furniture, electric mixers and toasters.

"So contagious is the booking season," Mrs. Potts says, "that it is not uncommon for single, unattached young ladies to try on wedding dresses in the hour or a half between lunch and matinee curtain time."

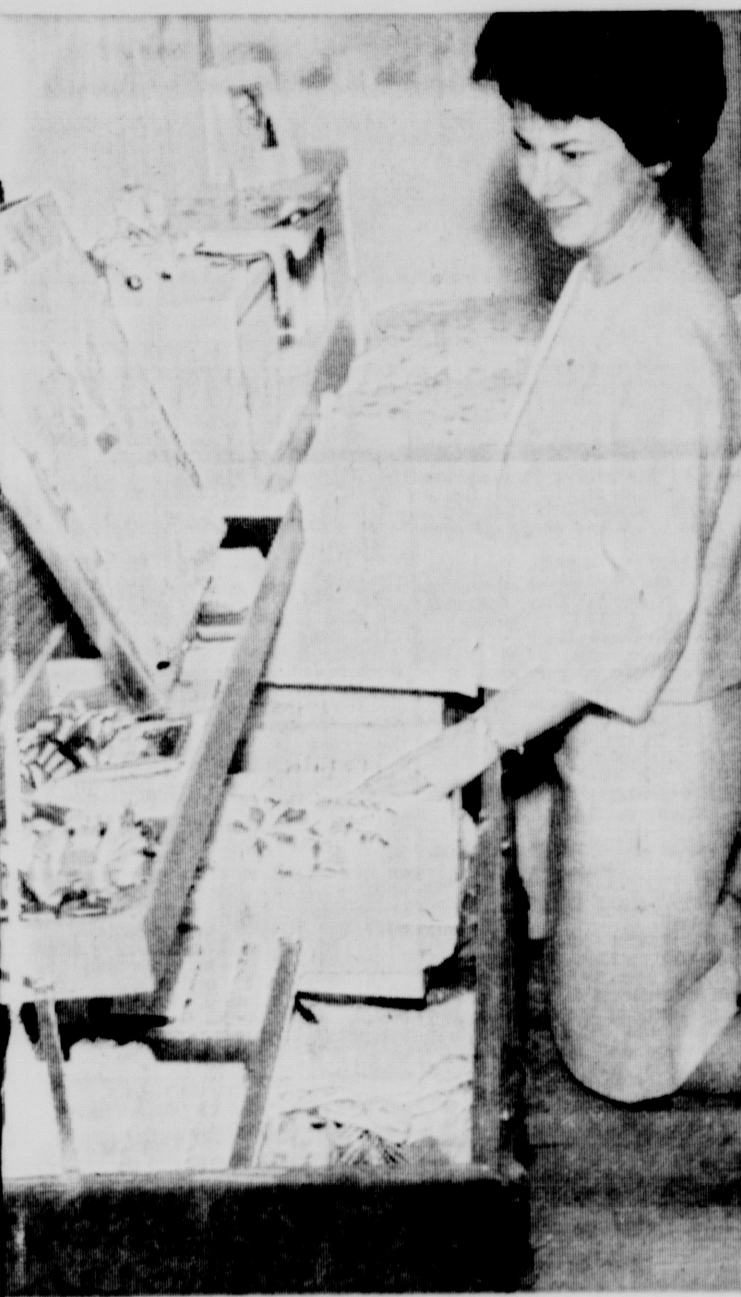

So crucial to the economy is this season that most of the department stores that did not set up bridal shops and wedding services have long since gone out of business.

And so critical to the national morale is the whole spree that the federal government in World War II was prevented from banning new wedding gowns for their duration by a public outcry from clergymen, sociologists, and civil leaders as well as retailers and brides-to-be.

In these years since, the booking season has grown bigger and more expensive despite the constantly rising cost of basic necessities.

"More, not fewer, young working girls — who expect to continue working after marriage — a shooting the works on a big wedding nowadays," Mrs. Potts says.

At the altar, nervous and compliant, Modern Bride statistics say, but more than likely in a rented suit.

KNEELING BEFORE HOPE CHEST, Miss Judy Gardner inspects its contents. Some were put into the chest when Judy Kay was a little girl. Many of the things are heirlooms, left to her by her grandmother. The chest itself, was a surprise Christmas gift from Charles Wadleigh, her fiancé.

Long Dreams of Youth Turn to Home

By EUGENE GILBERT
President, Gilbert Youth
Research, Inc.

The glamorous image of career woman has little attraction for most modern teen-age girls.

I can't say it's a surprise that the girls are pointing for jobs of homemaker and mother. That's come out before this in surveys. But I must say the forthrightness of those interviewed in our latest survey was surprising.

The girls seem to think of their future in terms of steering into safe harbors. Only 10 per cent, as idealized by Rosalind Russell type movie heroines, were objects of envy.

Comments received from those interviewed indicate a swing from the days when the career girl, as idealized by Rosalind Russell type movie heroines, were objects of envy.

As a Brooklyn, N. Y., 15-year old explains in typical fashion why she would settle for a temporary, subordinate job:

"I plan more on getting married than being a career woman."

And Diane Bourke, 16, of Durham, N. C., added, "I don't have the qualities or the drive it would take."

"I don't want to make decisions," said Toni Armstrong, 16, of Corry, Pa., "I would rather have someone else tell me what to do."

Boys Seek Steady Jobs

There still is a streak of adventure among the boys, but nearly 40 per cent of them say they'll seek the job security they think is found with large corporations.

Jeffrey Russell, 15, of Portsmouth, N. H. backs up his choice of a large company with: "There is more room for advancement and fewer things to hinder your progress to the top."

Speaking up for the 25 per cent of boys and girls who prefer small companies is William Joyce, 17, of South Bend, Ind.

"I'LL DO ANYTHING FOR YOU" said Charles when Judy asked him if he would pose with her in some of the photographs for this feature. Here the couple is shown considering relatives and friends they wish to attend their June 1 wedding. (Democrat-Capitol photos)

Judy has selected for something old, hoops she wore with her formal when she was homecoming queen; something new will be her gown; her something borrowed talisman will be a safety pin for the hoop from her matron of honor, Mrs. Loy Homan (Judy stood up with her and gave her a safety pin for something borrowed at her wedding); her satin garter will be blue.

Aside from planning for the wedding, Judy Kay and Charles have made other investments for their future together. There is the time they reserved for their education. Charles has a car and the rent is paid on an apartment at Weathers Court, where they will live until school re-opens in the fall. Raytown will then become their home, for Judy hopes to teach there for at least a year. He will commute to Warrensburg for his last year of college.

It has come as something of a surprise to actress Shirly Conway to emerge in a few short months as the ideal prototype of the registered nurse—a modern combination of Florence Nightingale and Clara Barton.

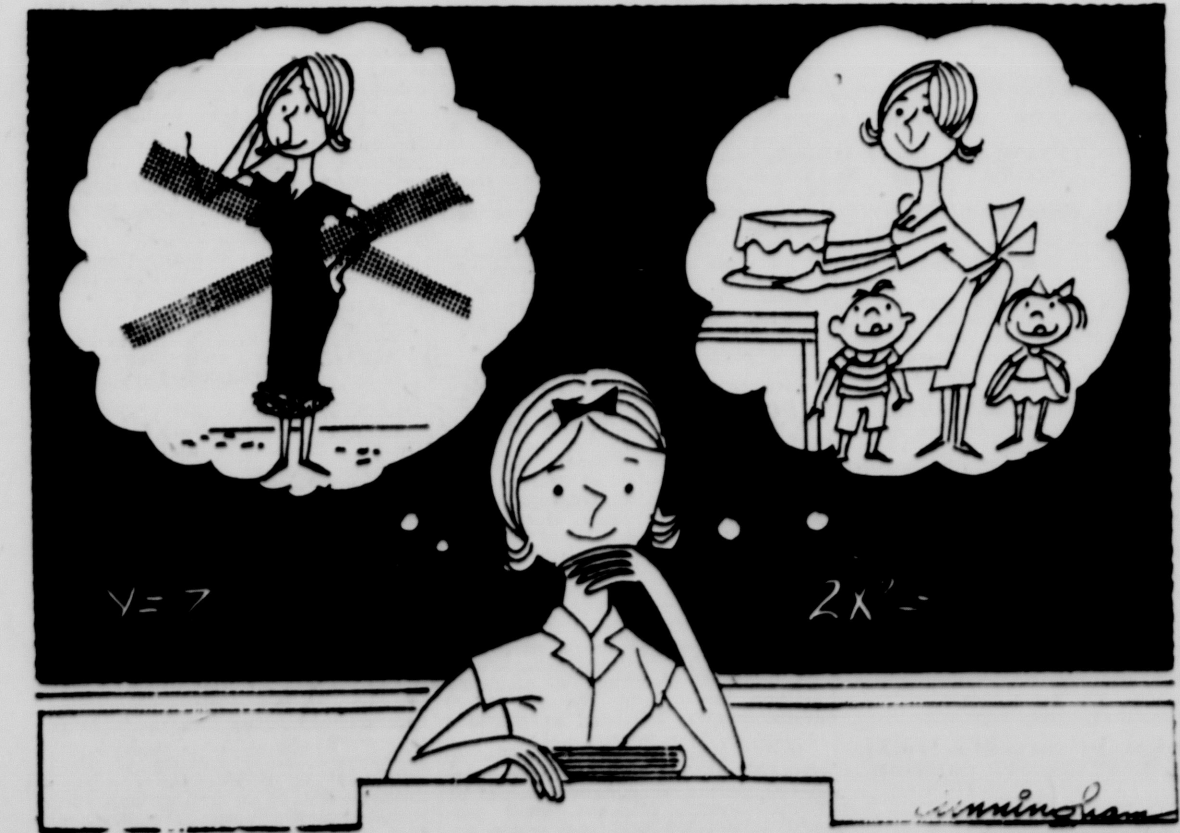

And, curiously, playing starched dedicated and somewhat emotional Nurse Thorpe has had a marked effect on Miss Conway.

"Playing the part—preparing for it—gives you an insight into situations which otherwise might slip by," she explained. "I was appalled by some of the things I learned when we did an episode about narcotics addiction—particularly about what happens to young people. And the episode about the young wife who unwittingly crippled her unborn child by taking thalidomide pills also affected me deeply."

Shirly is an upstate New York girl whose closest relationship to the theatre was a great-aunt, Henrietta Crossman, a famous actress. Shirly—secretly determined to be an actress—graduated from the University of Michigan in 1938 with an A. B. degree after majoring in speech therapy.

She never "practiced," however, but saved up $30 and headed for New York. She promptly made good—but as a model who was so pretty she was picked as a cover girl on an issue of Redbook Magazine.

AN ORCHID'S FRAGILE BEAUTY is inspected by Judy Kay, whose job it has been, among many others, to select flowers for her wedding. Flowers are a major item for a wedding, but indispensable for its charm.

a fantastic 150 miles an hour and led Hurtubise by only 8 seconds.

Veteran Johnny Boyd went out of the race with mechanical trouble.

Bud Tingelstad and Allen Crowe crashed almost simultaneously on different parts of the track, a fourth of the way through the race, but neither appeared to be injured. Crowe piled into the wall on the first turn in front of the big double-decked grandstands.

Tingelstad hit the wall on the southeast turn.

At 100 miles Jones had won $5,850 in lap money for leading 49 of the 50 circuits. Hurtubise, who led the first lap, had dropped back to fourth place with Roger McCluskey second and Marshman third.

Eddie Sachs had raced from 10th to third position after 125 miles but Jones was still far in front of the field.

The no-passing light was on for 9 minutes 32 seconds after the Tingelstad and Crowe wrecks.

Jones made a pit stop after 62 laps and got back on the track after 22 seconds—and McCluskey went into the lead.

In a flurry of pit stops, Scotsman Clark went into the lead with his green little Lotus-Ford, with teammate Dan Gurney second.

Duane Carter pulled into the grass along the backstretch in one of the rear-engine Thompsons, out of the race.

Clark went in front on the 68th lap, 170 miles.

The yellow light was on 2 minutes 56 seconds after Carter went into the infield.

Clark, leaning to the left on the turns as if he were riding a bicycle, was still ahead of Jones at the halfway mark. Jones was coming up fast at 150 miles an hour and records were falling steadily.

Gurney made his first, and what he hoped was his only, pit stop after 92 laps. Jones moved into second. Clark made his stop after 9 laps and Jones was ahead again. His problem was that he would have to make at least one more pit stop and the Lotus-Fords probably would go the rest of the way non-stop.

Hurtubise was blackflagged off the track, evidently for leaking oil.

At 250 miles, the midway point, just before Hurtubise went out, Jones was running first, Clark second and Hurtubise third. Foyt was fourth, McElreath fifth, Sachs sixth, McCluskey seventh, Ruby eighth, Gurney ninth and two-time winner Roger Ward in tenth.

Jones owned a new record of 143.443 m.p.h. for the distance against the old mark of 138.742 by Jim Rathmann in 1960.

Jones led Clark by almost two miles.

"I have decided to resign as traffic clerk in the service of the city and continue as the elective officer of police magistrate, as I feel it is my responsibility to the public as an elective official to serve them, in which I have honestly and sincerely endeavored to be a fair and impartial police magistrate.

"I am grateful to the voters of Sedalia for the privilege of having served the public as police magistrate, and have decided to resign from the appointive position in the City Hall, effective as of June 1, 1963, and I am hopeful that the public will understand my reasons for doing so," Howerton concluded.
